HITLER PLANS PEACE DRIVE

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Conviction that Adolf Hitler is working toward a spectacular "end the war" move designed to force Britain and French acceptance of the "liquidation" of Poland grew in diplomatic circles here today.

Estonians Wait Red-Nazi Parley

KARL SELTER, Foreign Minister — KONSTANTIN PATS, President — KAAREL FENPALU, Prime Minister

The British government kept guarded silence on German-Soviet Russian negotiations at Moscow, but many informed observers expressed belief that Hitler would make the talks a springboard for a "peace offensive."

Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax had another interview with Russian Ambasador Ivan Maisky yesterady, apparently seeking light on enigmatic Russian policy.

Talking with Maisky last Saturday night, the foreign secretary requested the Russian government to provide information on its future aims in eastern Europe. How Maisky replied to Halifax was not officially disclosed.

It was understood in diplomatic quarters, however, that the Russian view was that a definite statement of policy could not be expected at this stage.

Berlin Sees War's End; Hints Red Aid And Japs' Alliance

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (AP)—The belief was prevalent among Nazis today that Germany's war would end tomorrow with the formal surrender of Warsaw by her 100,000 defenders.

But Germany further strengthened her western defenses and informed sources said if Great Britain still wanted to fight it was up to her.

Germany also was strengthening herself politically in the east. Indications increased that the mission of German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop of Moscow might result in closer political co-operation between Nazi Germany and her new friend, Soviet Russia.

As a prelude to a more violent struggle in the west—which German sources said could happen only if the Allies launched a large-scale offensive—greatest importance was attached to Von Ribbentrop's visit to Moscow.

Today's issue of Das Schwarze Korps, organ of Adolf Hitler's elite guard, indicated the possibility of a military alliance among Germany, Russia and, later, Japan.

The newspaper, closely connected with the highest Nazi quarters and frequently regarded as a prophet of Nazi politics, published a cartoon showing British Prime Minister Chamberlain kneeling on the British Isles in prayer, umbrella in hand.

Surrounding him were three huge military figures labelled Japan, U. S. S. R. and Greater Germany.

"The encirclement," said the caption, "a masterpiece of English diplomacy."

In this connection, some German sources saw as "highly significant" the visit of former Japanese War Minister General Count Juichi Terauchi and a group of high Japa-

Allies Taboo Hitler, Nazism in Any Peace

By CHARLES A. SMITH

LONDON, Sept. 28—The end of Nazism in its entirety, from Adolf Hitler down to the lowliest brownshirt bureaucrat, the restitution of Polish and Czechoslovakian independence and definite proof that Germany has renounced all aggression—economic and military—were set forth as Great Britain's only peace terms today.

To this correspondent, authoritative quarters announced their flat rejection in advance of any dynamic "peace offers" that may be framed by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop during his current talks with the Russians in Moscow.

It is far more than Hitler, the man, that France and Britain are warring to crush—it is Hitlerism,

On Sea and In Air Berlin claimed a British destroyer was bombed from the air off the Firth of Forth on the east coast of Scotland. Another Swedish (neutral) ship was submarined off Norway, the crew being saved. A Russian captain said an unidentified submarine forced him to run his ship aground off the Estonian coast. In a move which puzzled observers, the Navy Department at Washington today prepared for the immediate transfer of up to one-third of the Pacific fleet from the West coast to Hawaii. The British Admiralty announced enemy submarines were being checked with greater success than in the World War. Paris dispatches claimed the major portion of the Nazi undersea fleet out of action.

AGED Polish woman receives food from German field kitchen.

Behind the Front The world wondered—and waited today for a possible announcement from either Moscow or Berlin which might end the European hostilities or plunge the entire continent into a long drawn-out war. It was believed among the Nazis that Germany could end her war tomorrow with the formal surrender of Warsaw, but against this theory was her move to strengthen positions on the Western Front. The entire situation, however, was believed to hinge on the outcome of the conference between German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop with Soviet leaders, including Stalin and envoys from Turkey and Estonia. Whether it meant another quick move for a shift in the balance of power in Europe or a concerted move for peace could only be conjectured. However, the peace theory was strengthened in Paris where informed French quarters expressed belief that Hitler was preparing new peace proposals, backed by the threat of the possible German-Soviet military alliance. Britain's reaction was not made known, but it was reported from London that such peace overtures would be flatly rejected. London dispatches declared nothing less than complete extinction of Hitlerism would satisfy the allies.

On the Land—Warsaw's radio was silent today and the city apparently had capitulated to Nazi demands for surrender of the city. All defense of the Polish capital has been abandoned. The German army is expected to take over its control tomorrow. Lieut.-Col. Mateus Izycki, Polish flier who fled to Hungary, described in lurid detail the horrors that accompanied the 20-day siege of the ill-fated city. On the Western Front, a cold wave forced a lull in Western Front activity. An epidemic of grippe was reported among soldiers of both sides.

RUSS-GERMAN PARLEY HITS ANOTHER SNAG OVER SPOILS

MOSCOW, Sept. 28 (INS)—Solution of the problems confronting Germany, Russia and the Baltic and Balkan states is not nearly so cut and dried in advance as was the Russo-German non-aggression pact on Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's first visit here, it was indicated today.

Von Ribbentrop, Josef Stalin, and Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyache-Slav M. Moltov met in the Kremlin again today, although their initial conversation of five and a half hours did not break up until the early hours of this morning.

TALKED ABOUT POLAND

Observers felt that the length of the talks showed that all the questions had not been discussed and agreed upon previously.

The first communique merely said that the Russo-German delegates talked over questions connected with developments in Poland.

Count Fredrich Von Der Schulenberg, German ambassador to Moscow, and Alexander Shkhartzev, Soviet ambassador to Berlin, attended the night conversations.

Cooling his heels while the major diplomats talked, was Karl Selter, Estonian foreign minister.

STALIN AT DINNER

He was believed by Soviet quarters to be ready to capitulate to Russian demands for port concessions in Tallinn. Although he denied Russian press charges that Estonian ports were being used as foreign submarine bases.

Still uncommunicative, the conferees resumed their discussions. An official dinner honoring the Berlin delegation was scheduled for the Kremlin this evening at which, although Foreign Commissar Moltov will be the official host, Premier Stalin is expected to be present.

Other guests will include political and military leaders of the U. S. S. R. and members of the German embassy staff.

BRITISH WARSHIP BOMBED? LONDON DENIES REPORTS

Berlin officially claimed today that Nazi bombing planes had "successfully attacked" a heavy British cruiser five miles off Scotland's North Sea coast.

The British admiralty said: "Poppycock."

Berlin radio hinted today that the aircraft carrier claimed sunk by a Nazi plane raid yesterday was none other than H. M. S. Ark Royal, Britain's newest aircraft carrier, pride of the fleet.

The British admiralty again said: "Poppycock."

"20 SUBS DESTROYED"

Paris "high authority" said the French and British navies had captured or sunk 20 German submarines, almost one-third of the total U-boat fleet.

Germany said:

"No submarines have been lost."

London said moreU-boat prisoners had arrived in England and that the British blockade had driven U-boats far out to sea.

A new eye-witness version (British) of yesterday's air attack on the British fleet in the North Sea was released:

Associated Press from Berlin detailed the new Nazi claim of an air victory in the following dispatch:

"BERLIN, Sept. 28—The supreme command, announcing for the second day a success for Germany's air force against Britain's naval might, reported today a British heavy cruiser had been bombed off the east coast of Scotland.

"The command's communique said:

"'Heavy British cruiser was successfully attacked off the Isle of May (at the mouth of the Firth of Forth) by one air force fighting unit. One 250-kilo (550-pound) bomb hit the prom.'"

The entire crew of 29 was saved by Norwegian torpedo boats.

The Nyland, with a cargo of iron ore for Antwerp, had tied up here for a week, but put out late last night.

Hitler 'Purge' of 30 And Fritsch Charged

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Sept. 28—If a full and detailed report received in Paris by a German emigre news service today can be believed, Col. Gen. Baron Werner von Fritsch, one-time commander-in-chief of the German army, was shot in the back by Adolf Hitler's Storm Troopers on orders from the Fuehrer himself.

Since the German high command announced that von Fritsch was "killed in action" near Warsaw, there have been repeated rumors that the be-monocled general was "liquidated" because of his opposition to Hitler's policies.

But this emigre news service, which despite its naturally partisan standpoint has been distinguished by its generally accurate knowledge of affairs inside the Reich, came through today with a detailed and circumstantial account.

BEHEADS 30 NAZI OFFICERS?

It stated, among other things, that Hitler is engaged in a sweeping purge of his army officers and that thirty of them were beheaded for high treason on Aug. 1.

With emphasis upon the naturally prejudiced but usally well-informed source of information, here is how the service described von Fritsch's end:

"The background of the situation was that von Fritsch, as commander-in-chief of the army, had never approved of Hitler.

"In consequence he was railroaded out of the army on charges of immorality, was subsequently, through army pressure, reinstated as an honorary colonel and thereafter lived in artillery barracks, protected by army sentries against Himmler's Gestapo.

"As the most popular officer in the army and an outspoken anti-Nazi, he represented a major

Arrests Loom as Tartar Returns to State Prison

Despite police vigilance, John Tartar, 37-year-old parole violator who was recaptured early today, has been in Boston several times since search for him started, it was revealde today by Tartar himself and State Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman.

As Tartar was returned to State Prison from Lyman's office in the State House today, there were indications that criminal action may be taken against one or more persons on a charge of harboring a criminal.

This is in connection with money given Tartar for a new getaway, nearly $500 having been found on him when state police recaptured him in Carver st., near Park sq., as Tartar was heading for a New York bus.

The capture was made after Lieut.-Inspector Joseph L. Ferrari of the state police, in charge of the police detail attached to the pardon probe committee, received a tip that the ex-convict was in Boston and about to leave by early bus.

As he stepped from a taxicab, he was surrounded by Ferrari, Lieut.-Inspector Detective Joseph Crescio, Corp. James Winn and Detective Arnold W. Olsson.

He offered no resistance, surrendered immediately and admitted his identity, police said. He was carrying a large suitcase packed with clothing and containing $485.

Lieutenant Ferrari said he learned three days ago that Tartar was in the South End and for two days the wanted man was kept under constant surveillance.

He walked into the police trap unsuspectingly, although he knew state and local officers have been on his trail since March, it was said.

Governor Saltonstall issued a remand warrant for Tartar's arrest because the ex-convict allegedly violated the terms of his pardon by leaving the state.

Under the terms of the warrant, he must serve the remainder of his life term in state prison or a hospital for the criminally insane.

LIEUT. JOSEPH CRESCIO, JOHN TARTAR, INSP. FERRARI

Tartar was given the life sentence after pleading guilty, 11 years ago, to a charge of second degree murder in the slaying of Mary Mahan, pretty South Boston cabaret singer.

Her body, riddled by 10 bullets, was found in the Blue Hill reservation.

According to Corrections Commissioner Lyman, Tartar is "dangerously insane" and police feared the man would commit more crimes of violence before he was apprehended.

Lyman was notified of the Tartar capture and ordered the ex-convict held at the state police headquarters in Commonwealth Pier, until a conference with the special pardons investigating commission.

A few days after Governor Saltonstall ordered Tartar's recapture Rep. Roland D. Sawyer urged speedy action by the Legislature in probing the pardons situation because of persistent rumors a $25,000 fund was "split" among two former state officials and a prominent Boston lawyer for Tartar's release.

Later the pardon commission was reported to have learned that someone at the State House called Tartar at the Newark, N. J., airport, warning him not to return to Massachusetts because of the Governor's recommittal order.

9 Interned Fliers Grab Plane, Flee

The airmen managed to regain possession of their confiscated plane and, evading their captors, took off and flew across the North sea to England.

WARSAW, CITY OF DEAD, WAITS NAZI RULE

Eyewitness Tells Horrors of Siege

BUDAPEST, Sept. 28 (AP)—Except for strange, sputtered signals, the wavelength of the Warsaw radio was silent today.

Apparently the station's epic tale was told, ended on the same defiant note it struck during the 20 days it told the outside world of German siege

Its last message, broadcast at 3 p. m. (9 a. m., E. S. T.) yesterday, was a new challenge to the Nazi besiegers:

"We will never give in while one of us is alive!"

But last night the Polish telegraph agency carried a dispatch, dated Warsaw, which indicated that defense of the Polish capital had been abandoned.

German announcements said the city had capitulated unconditionally and would surrender formally tomorrow.

From the picture painted by the radio announcers and by a Polish army flier who escaped through a barrage of shells, Warsaw gave up only after it had become a city of ruin and tragedy.

BULLETIN

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (AP) — The high command announced that the commander of Modlin Fortress, about 15 miles northwest of Warsaw, offered this morning to surrender to besieging German forces.

EYE WITNESS STORY

The flier, Lieut. Col. Mateus Izycki, who flew out of Poland last Monday, told of an ever-deepening black pall of smoke over Warsaw.

In a husky voice that dropped to a whisper, he told of starvation, of incessant rumblings of siege guns, of civilians creeping from cellars during lulls in artillery fire and between air raids to bury their dead in parks, and public places.

"From the air the city is a horrible sight," he said. "Hardly a building is intact.

"The city is ringed by six divisions of German soldiers whose artillery is pouring in shells unceasingly, aided by an average of 200 raiding planes a day.

"Warsaw is a city where from 40 to 60 new fires start daily from incendiary bombs. Only small fires can be handled; the big big ones are left to burn.

SAY MASS AMID RUINS

"It is a city where priests say mass in wrecked churches; a city of never-ending bedlam where heavy bombs go crashing through four or five floors and topple an entire building.

"There's a no-man's land strewn with dead men, women and horses. There's some life in the streets, for the city must live, but old people and children never leave their cellar refuges."

Col. Izycki said Warsaw's defenders could rest "when the Germans took time out for lunch" but otherwise the bombardment was "steady and methodical, striking every section of the city."

"I had a room in the Bristol hotel." he related. "One day I went there to find my room had disappeared in a mass of ruins.

WATCH WOUNDED DIE

"All hospitals have been hit or destroyed and practically all medical aid is administered on the spot. In many instances there was nothing to do but watch those die who were seriously wounded.

"At times the wounded had to be thrown from burning houses to the street below, even though they suffered additional broken bones."

ENDLESS STREAM of Polish prisoners marches through Polish village on their way to concentration camp. Only a short time before these same men had been desperately defending their country.

Cash-Carry Foes Hold Fire Until Bill Comes Up for Vote

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Preferring to save their main attack for the Senate floor, opponents of the Administration's neutrality bill decided against holding it up today in the Senate foreign relations committee.

As a result, prompt committee approval was expected at a session beginning at 10:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time.

SEE TRADE HALTED

Debate in the Senate, however, will not start until Monday in order to give members time to study the measure, which would repeal the arms embargo and set up a "cash and carry" system of selling all goods to warring nations.

The Foreign Relations Committee was called together and pressure from domestic ship and air lines to modify the proposed ban against transportation by American vessels of cargoes or passengers to belligerents.

Some complained particularly, senators said, that surface and air ships probably would have to stop all trade with British and French possessions in the West Indies and Central and South America.

Chairman Pittman (D.) of Nevada of the Foreign Relations Committee said he told the protestants they would get plenty of trade outside of that with belligerents and that the West Indies trade was insignificant compared to protecting Americacn neutrality.

CONFER WITH GARNER

He added the bill would still permit American vessels and aircraft to stop at West Indian and other belligerent possessions for refueling and provisioning.

They could not discharge passengers or cargoes, but could bring both back to the States.

Shipping representatives also called on Vice-President Garner. One said Garner told them that "freedom of the seas" for neutrals in wartime was a thing of the past and that shipping interests should be willing to make some sacrifices to avoid involving this country in the war.

One shipping official suggested an amendment to establish a western hemisphere "economic orbit" in which American ships would be permitted to continue normal peacetime trade with the colonial possessions of Britain and France.

PITTMAN EXPLAINS BILL

The Administration's stand was outlined by Senator Pittman in a radio speech last night. The new bill he said, would "put teeth" in the neutrality law rather than weakening it.

Appeals to congressmen to retain the arms embargo, he asserted, were based "either upon the ignorance of the intent of Congress or are the result of visions organized foreign propaganda."

Pittman declared the arms embargo originally was enacted chiefly to prevent the submarining of American ships.

And 40 Families Had 'Supper Out'

A hungry thief, who robbed some 40 Brookline and Brighton families of their suppers, was sought today by Brookline and Boston police.

Report Bremen Seen in Russia

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 28 (AP)—Another report that the German liner Bremen was tied up at a Soviet Russian Arctic port was received here today.

The newspaper Ekstrabladet in a dispatch from Malmo, Sweden, said the crew of the Estonian steamer Kuressar reported seeing the Bremen at Murmansk when their ship stopped there for cargo. The captain of the Kuressar declined to comment.

"Invisible" Warplane Attacks Scot Village

LONDON, Sept. 28 (INS)—The almost incredible possibility that camouflage has been perfected to the point of absolute invisibility was discussed today following two separate bursts of untraceable machine-gun fire on the hamlet of Ballachantuie in Argyllshire, Scotland.

On two occasions yesterday, the roar of airplane engines was heard by residents of the village, and each time it was followed by bursts of machine-gun fire.

The roof of the garage of the hamlet's main hotel was spattered with bullets and a number of windows were broken.

Although the sky was cloudless, no planes were seen at any time. Residents of Ballachantuie described the machine-gun bursts as "rapid" and said that the two mysterious attacks occurred within the space of 15 minutes.

A number of nickel-cased bullets were found. They are being used in a searching investigation to determine their origin and source.

HUSS SEES WAR ALONG SAAR LINE

(Editor's Note—The following dispatch was filed from the Saarland front, where Pierre J. Huss and four other American correspondents made a tour of the Westwall under German military conduct.)

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY FRONT, Sept. 28—War on the French frontier so far has been extremely restricted, according to observations from the German side in a 100-mile journey; and the Germans say this is because the French realize a direct attack on the powerful Westwall would be useless.

Desultory artillery firing, aerial bombardments and infrequent airplane fights were all that could be seen in this area.

Evacuation of Saarbruecken was confirmed on the trip.

Saarbrucken, important industrial city near the French border, but outside the German Westwall, is virtually without lights. Shops —with wares still in the windows —are closed, and the panes in houses are shattered. Only the air field has suffered from shell fire.

FRENCH HOLD HILLS

French forces occupied projecting tips of the Varndt forest below Saarbruecken two weeks ago but, according to the Germans, they suffered terrific losses in the mine fields. The Germans said their troops evacuated to avoid being taken in a loop.

The French also occupied a height at Auersmache.

Observation indicated the French have stayed inside their own borders, with the exception of those two points.

The French line now runs at an average of 10 to 15 miles away from the German Westwall key points.

Germans say the main reason the French have not attacked is their realization that the Westwall—with its thousands of interconnected pill-boxes and bunkers with concrete walls 6 to 12 feet thick, barbed wire, etc.—is impregnable.

When the French invaded the Varndt forest, mine fields convinced them No Man's Land lying between the two lines is impassable, the Germans say.

Two attacking regiments were virtually wiped out without the Germans firing a shot, it was said. Then the French assertedly tried to drive horses through the fields, but at the first explosions the horses dashed back and the French gave up further attempts.

A series of a dozen artillery shots from the French side brought an exchange from German guns last night. With the French firing from a distance of 10 miles, no hits were scored.

Above Saarbruecken, scouting planes chased French planes firing tracer bullets from a height of 10,000 feet. Looping and diving the French escaped across the border.

Cold Wave Slows West Front Drive

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, Sept. 28—A wave of cold weather gripped the Allied and German armies on the Western Front today, slowing up operations to an appreciable degree and bringing in its wake a wholesale outbreak of grippe.

Both sides were compelled to send numerous victims of the ailment back of the lines as bitter winds whipped the areas around Saarbrucken.

A German attack west of Saarbrucken mentioned in the official communique was, it was learned, merely a minor sortie by a German patrol which was annihilated by French artillery. The communique read:

"The night was calm on the whole.

"An enemy attack west of Saarbrucken failed.

"On the sea commerce once again is functioning regularly, thanks to the organization of convoys and an air and naval patrol.

"Yesterday afternoon our air force and the British force brought down several enemy pursuit planes.

"There was activity by our reconnaissance planes during the night."

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (AP)—Adolph Hitler, after a two-day stay, left Berlin today for an unannounced destination, a government spokesman said. Some quarters believed the Fuehrer had gone either to the western front or to the Wilhelmshaven naval base with General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command.

PARIS, Sept. 28 (AP)—Military dispatches today reported French scouting planes had carried out successful reconnaissance flights far into the interior of Germany. The French airmen went "as far as possible" eastward, flying over railroads and highways to observe German troop movements behind the western front.

LONDON, Sept. 28 (INS)—Royal Air Force planes staged more survey flights over Germany last night and dropped propaganda leaflets, the Daily Express said today.

FREDERIKSHAVN, Denmark, Sept. 28 (AP)—The captain of a Finnish ship reported here today he was stopped three times during the night by warships whose nationality he said he was forbidden to disclose. The first warship hailed him, he said, the second fired a blank shot and the third a live shell. He said his ship's papers were examined in each case.

ARENDAL, Norway, Sept. 28 (AP)—Inhabitants of Maerdoe Island, in the Skagerrak, reported they heard a powerful explosion at sea today at 5 a. m. Three hours later, they said, a submarine was sighted heading eastward at high speed about ten miles off the coast.

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP)—The ministry of information announced today 400 New Zealanders were in the United Kingdom either serving as royal air force pilots or undergoing training for the R. A. F.

PARIS—Sept. 28 (AP)—The naval ministry today disclosed an undetermined number of mobilized French fishermen had been granted "fishing furloughs" to help restock markets with fresh fish.

PRAGUE CARDINAL ILL

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 28 (AP)—Carlo Cardinal Kaspar, archbishop of Prague, was described as seriously ill today in a message received at the Vatican.

Beard in Curlers Just Fits Gas Mask, Says Polly

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP)—From the depths of Cornwall, which has not known the hand of an invader since the days of the Phoenicians, came this homey gas mask hint today in a letter to the London Times:

"May I put forward a suggestion for the comfort of those bearded men who do not wish to lose this desirable adornment?

"Four curling pins may be bought at the stores and the beard tightly rolled up in these and tucked under the chin. The gas mask is then drawn over the face, beard and all, and is perfectly airtight.

"This discovery has been the means of preserving my husband's magnificent beard, and I submit it to you in the hope that it may save others'.

"I am, sir, your obedient servant,

"PEGGY POLLARD.

Soviet War Vessels Off Estonia Coast

HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 28 (AP)—Several Soviet Russian warships were sighted today making what appeared to be a search of the Estonian coast.

Russian sources here said the fleet was ready for battle.

In other quarters the belief was expressed that the ships might be searching for an unidentified submarine which Moscow yesterday accused of torpedoing the Russian freighter Metallist near Narva Bay, on the northern coast of Estonia.

It was apparent from this city, overlooking the narrow neck of the Gulf of Finland, that activity of units of Russia's Baltic fleet had been increased.

Linked with this was the fact that Russian planes were sighted over Estonia yesterday.

In some quarters, the increased Russian air and naval activity was regarded as a sign of Soviet alertness, at least, and possibly as pressure on Estonia because of the sinking of the Metallist.

Estonia's explanation for the escape from Tallinn, Estonia, of an interned Polish submarine was described in a Russian communique as "unsatisfactory."

The communique said "one can arrive at the conclusion that some unknown submarines have a secret base somewhere near the Estonian coast."

Second Soviet Ship Attacked by Submarine

MOSCOW, Sept. 28 (AP)—The official Soviet agency, Tass, today reported the second attack in two days by an unidentified submarine on Soviet shipping near Estonia.

The agency said the captain of the 967-ton Soviet steamer Pioner radioed that an unknown submarine had forced him to run on the rocks of Vigrund bank while trying to enter Narva Bay.

The bay is on Estonia's northern coast.

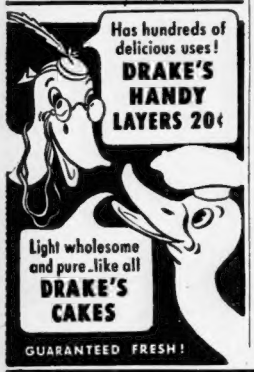
Canadian Liner Overdue in Japan

TOKYO, Sept. 28 (INS)—There was considerable speculation today over the whereabouts of the Canadian Pacific luxury liner Empress of Russia, scheduled to arrive in Yokohama yesterday.

Company officials could give no information beyond the fact that the liner left Vancouver Sept. 16. Efforts to contact the vessel by wireless have been fruitless.



Nazis Say British Warship Bombed

Berlin reported the Ark Royal claim in the following dispatch:

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (INS)—The German radio hinted today that the 22,000-ton British aircraft carrier Ark Royal may have been the warship which the German high command claims was sunk in a raid by Nazi war planes in the North sea yesterday.

"'On Sept. 26 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon,' it was announced over the radia, 'the German air force attacked part of the British high seas fleet between the Norwegian and Scottish coasts.

"'A big aircraft carrier of up-to-date description was hit directly by a bomb on the heaviest type, which resulted in a giant explosion.

"'Where is the Ark Aoyal?

"'English people! Ask your admiralty.'"

(Editor's Note—The Ark Royal was completed Nov. 16, 1938, at a cost of 12,000,000. She carried a normal complement of 60 planes. If she has been destroyed she is the second British carrier sunk.)

LONDON'S VERSION

Out of London, Associated Press carried the following "authoritative" version of yesterday's air attack on the fleet:

"Enemy bombers were able to take advantage of low-lying clouds to dive over the battleships. Other airplanes flew at a height of about 12,000 feet to take advantage of a break in the clouds to deliver an attack on our cruisers.

"So effective, however, was the defense put up by the British squadron that the German planes found it impossible to find a target.

"British high-angle guns forced them to abandon the attack after shooting down two of their planes and damaging another badly."

"SUBS DRIVEN TO SEA"

Before war began, Germany had approximately 70 U-boats in operation with an additional 30 or 35 in construction, a fact that should be kept in mind in view of the following International News Service dispatch:

"PARIS, Sept. 28—The French and British navies have succeeded in capturing or destroying 20 German submarines it was learned here today. A high authority revealed this to International News Service."

Supplementing this claim, Associated Press reported from London:

"LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP)—German submarines were said in an authoritative statement today to 'have now been driven from thickly dotted shipping routes' around the British coast.

"'In less than a month,' the statement declared, 'they have found the pace too hot and have retreated from much-used shipping channels and are now forced to operate much farther out in the open sea, where the "catch" is bound to be much smaller.'

"British sources, commenting on the content on that German submarines had been driven out to sea, said:

"'The position now is similar to the one that existed at the end of the last war, when the U-boat menace was practically defeated.'

"The same sources reiterated that the German merchant flag had been driven from the seas and that German ships had been forced into refuge in neutral ports all over the world."

NAZIS DENY SUB LOSS

Germany's blanket denial was the following cable:

"KIEL, Germany, Sept. 28 (INS) — Germany's submarine have suffered no losses in spite of several British attacks, a high naval authority said today.

"Submarines have been greatly improved since the World War, said men who have served on them, and types now in use will be able to cope with increased British anti-submarine activities.

Kiel City has not been attacked and the Kiel canal locks are intact."

And in the war of claim and rebuttal, Britain had this response to the Kiel denial:

"LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Ministry of Information announced today that further German prisoners arrived at an internment camp in a northern industrial area.

"The captives were described as 'U-boat prisoners.'

(Prime Minister Chamberlain on Sept. 15 told the House of Commons, prisoners had been taken in British successes against German submarines; Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Almiralty, on Tuesday, said that additional German submarine men had been captured.)

"'Most of them wore civilian dress,' the ministry said, 'although a few had retained their naval trousers and boots.

"'They looked fit, but a trifle haggard. The average age was about 21, and they carried odd-ments of personal belongings in cardboard boxes and when questioned by officers stood smartly to attention.'"

LEGION DEMANDS U.S. OUTLAW BUND AND COMMUNISTS

By JAMES F. McENANEY
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—The Communist Party, the German Bund and similar organizations should be outlawed through legislation, delegates to the American Legion voted here today.

Delegates attending the windup session of the 21st national convention approved a report of the Americanism committee which urged such action.

The resolution also asked continuation of the Dies Congressional committee that is investigating un-American activities.

It suggested registration of aliens and asked the legionnaires to aid in work against subversive activities.

The vote was taken as the ex-service men prepared to choose a new national commander.

The new leader will be pledged to work for a strengthening of the army, navy and air force.

Of the six candidates for commander, delegates indicated an overwhelming edge to Raymond J. Kelly of Detroit.

MANY SOCIAL EVENTS

Hours of the fourth day of the convention were filled with social events, as some 250,000 veterans made ready to depart immediately after electing their new national chieftain.

During the day, however, a final plea for national unity in the interests of neutrality was made to the convention by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs.

"It behooves us," he said in a prepared address, "to do everything we can, both by word and deed, in support of those ideals for which our great democracy was founded, and to render that assistance in the direction of a strict neutrality and for peace. In the sincere hope that the fires of war which are now burning abroad may rapidly be extinguished.

"Let us do all in our power to promote national unity among our people and endeavor to do all those things which will make for us now living and those to come after us a happy and prosperous nation."

GREETING FROM F. D. R.

A greeting from President Roosevelt was brought to the convention by the administrator, who said the nation's Chief Executive "has a sincere interest in the progress made by the American Legion and in the welfare of our million members."

The lone fatality among convention visitors up to the final day occurred last night when Frank Brooks, 52, of Bellingham, Wash., past comander of the Washington department died of a heart attack in his hotel room.

At earlier sessions, Legion members voted unanimously to come to Boston Sept. 26, 1940.

At once, Harold P. Redden, executive vice-president of the convention corporation, conferred with Mayor Tobin on plans to make the meeting next year the greatest in the history of the organization.

Appeal Is Lure-Slayer's Only Hope to Escape Florida Chair

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 28 (AP)—A bogus theatrical promoter who lured two movie struck girls from Miami with glib promises of fame, and then killed one of them, looked with but faint hope today toward a Supreme Court appeal that might save him from the electric chair.

A circuit court jury of 10 married men and two bachelors last night convicted Charles Jefferson, 29, on a charge of slaying 17-year-old Frances Dunn in a Palmetto thicket near the beach at Boca Raton last August 8.

The verdict of first degree murder without a recommendation of mercy made the death sentence mandatory, and Judge C. E. Chillingworth was expected to impose it this week.

Jefferson—also known as Thomas Cochran, Herbert Cochran and Thomas Ashwell during his checkered career—managed a weak smile when the jury returned the verdict after deliberating four hours and five minutes.

While the jury was out he said he was "ready for the worst," that he could expect nothing else.

LAWYER TO APPEAL

His court-appointed attorney, Jack Salisbury, said he felt "duty-bound" to appeal. Salisbury told the jury the crime was unpremeditated and that no motive was proved.

The only defense witness, Jefferson testified that the slaying grew out of a dispute between Miss Dunn and her companion, Jean Bolton.

He had "big-talked" in Miami about an idea to revolutionize the theatrical industry, he said, but he had no definite plan when he left with the girls ostensibly to have their pictures taken for movie tests.

GIRL ACCUSES HIM

After driving the girls to the lonely road and revealing himself as "a phoney," Jefferson declared, Miss Bolton suggested a kidnaping hoax for publicity. Miss Dunn refused to agree, he said, and the girls quarreled.

Jefferson asserted that in a rage he struck Frances with a hammer, fired at her once with a pistol, and then stabbed her with a butcher knife.

Miss Bolton's story differed considerably. She testified Jefferson told them it was a kidnaping, attacked both of them, and that she heard Frances scream while with Jefferson in the woods.

Miss Bolton, a 17-year-old blonde blues singer, was rescued after Jefferson permitted her to telephone her home.

Legion Mothers Urged to Save Sons

The Springfield Mothers Club made an appeal to wives of Legionnaires, with sons of war age, to organize in an effort to keep the boys from being sent overseas in the European conflict. A telegram sent to the American Legion National Convention in Chicago read:

"Mothers in our section of the country are organizing to prevent and prohibit, as far as it is in our power, the sending of our boys overseas in defense of any cause whatsoever. We wish to extend an invitation to wives of Legionnaires who are mothers of boys of war age, or near war age, to join in the movement."

Long-Lost Dad Aids Girl in Quincy Court

Happiness—and shame—were conflicting emotions crowding the heart of a tearful, 16-year-old girl witnes sin Quincy court today.

Even as she wept, she was happy. For at her side in the courtroom, holding her hand reassuringly, was her long-absent father, whom she hadn't seen since babyhood.

He came here from Knoxville, Tenn., to claim her, take her back into his arms and promise her a home and loving care to compensate her for lonely years she spent as a Massachusetts state ward.

ACCUSED DAD OF FIVE

But the rift today in the daughter's joy was her shame at the court story she told—a story of her alleged mistreatment by a Quincy married man in whose home she worked as a maid in 1937.

The man she accused—himself the father of five children—was held today in $3500 on a serious charge. He is Harold Darrow of Neats ave., Houghs Neck.

He denied the girl witness' testimony, which was given before Judge James Mulhall.

Police, however, offered evidence they claimed supported the "shame" story allegedly told them by the girl when they sought her as a runaway.

Having been placed by the state in a Randolph home, the girl disappeared, according to investigating officers.

LEADS TO REUNION

Tracing her, they found she had worked as a maid for several Quincy families, including Darrow's. The reason she allegedly gave for fleeing the Darrow home resulted in Darrow's subsequent arrest.

At the same time, the girl's "shame" story also led to her reunion with her father, a Knoxville city official. His first wife, a Quincy woman, had brought the daughter here as a baby.

A divorce followed. Then the mother died. The father understood that the daughter had died also.

When he learned, through police, that she was alive and in trouble, he hurried here to take her back with him to Knoxville.

Cape Boy Held In $10 Killing

WAREHAM, Sept. 28—Accused of murdering Lewis C. Williams, 43, a Riverside WPA worker, over a $10 debt, Walter L. Teachman, 17, of Onset, pleaded not guilty today in district court and was held without bail for a hearing Oct. 16.

Before that date, however, the case is expected to be given to the Plymouth County grand jury for consideration.

Meanwhile, young Teachman was remanded to Plymouth jail.

The body of Williams was found on the front porch of his home by Dr. Samuel Goldfarb, who went there after he received a phone call from Frank Teachman, father of the youth, notifying the doctor of the shooting.

Arrested at his home by Officers Clifton Keyes and Chester Morse, young Teachman was said by police to have admitted he fired the gun, but only in self-defense.

Teachman told the officers he and Williams painted a house together last spring and he had been trying vainly ever since to collect $10 due him for aiding in the work.

Police said young Teachman told them he brought the shotgun only as a means of trying to intimidate Williams into giving him the money, but became frightened when the older man made a move to attack him.

Court Will Referee 'Battling Horsmans'

Not only could she sling the groceries, but she was equally good at tossing punches and a flatiron on occasion, Albert E. Horsman of Randolph charged in Brookline probate court in a divorce action against Mrs. Frances E. Horsman, attractive Harvard University waitress.

He was pretty good at tossing punches himself, blackening her eye and ejecting her from their home, the pretty waitress countered in a cross action.

High point in the alleged tiffs occurred, he charged when she hurled a flat iron at him. He ducked, the iron hit a pastboard carton, and the family [illegible] just so much cracked porcelain.

The accusations were made in cross suits in which each sought a divorce and accused the other of cruel and abusive treatment, and sought the custody of their only child, Albert J. Horsman, aged three. Horsman also told of beating up George Brooks of Cambridge, who, he charged, was friendly with his wife. Brooks testified the fight was over another woman.

Horsman said that when he went home to eat on one occasion he found only potatos soaked in fuel oil and diapers in the cake box. Though a waitress, his wife never prepared any meals in their home, he complained.

Mrs. Horsman denied Brooks was her boy friend. In September, 1938, she recounted, while they were living on George st., Dorchester, holacked her eye and put her out of the house. Judge Joseph R. McCoy took the case under advisement.

Two Bergdoll Children Aid Freedom Fight of Father

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (INS)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, whose name was anathema in the United States during World War days, today summoned his two eldest children to aid him in a latent court-martial stemming directly from his draft-dodging tactics more than 20 years ago.

The children, in the order of their appearance, were serious-faced Alfred, 12, and Emma, 11, whose straw-colored hair was neatly braided into pigtails.

Both told practically the same story—that their first recollection of their father was when they were in the second grade school, Alfred volunteering he remembered his father helping him with his school work.

QUIZZED ON OATH

Their testimony was designed to show that Bergdoll, as he swore yesterday, made two visits to the United States in 1929 and 1939 while he was believed hiding in Germany, and that for seven of his nineteen years as a fugitive he was actually residing in the Bergdoll mansion in Philadelphia.

"Do you know what taking an oath is?" asked Major Lerch, judge advocate, when Alfred was summoned to the stand.

Alfred hesitated a moment, then piped.

"I don't think so."

"Do you understand what it means when you raise your hand and swear to tell the truth?"

"It means I shouldn't lie."

SATISFIES OFFICERS

The stern army judges there are 13 officers taking part—were satisfied and Harry Weinberger, Bergdoll's counsel, proceeded with his questioning.

Basing his move on Bergdoll's claim to residence in this country during his "wanted" period, Weinberger already has made an unsuccessful attempt to have the charges of desertion and escape invalidated or modified through a technicality

WILL WED DESPITE COURT BAN

Defying disapproval of prospective "in-laws" and possible contempt of court action, pretty, young Emma F. Preble, South End cashier, today planned a speedy elopement to New York State with Richard F. Engel, 22, of Quincy.

The girl, who faces court action if she marries young Engel and returns to this state, where a temporary injunction has been issued, smiled away present difficulties with a statement they would be wed "sometime Friday or Saturday" in a ceremony taking only "five minutes."

"Even if his father has persisted in refusing to allow our marriage, Dick and I will go to a little town outside Albany, N. Y., sometime Friday or Saturday," she said.

All hopes of his family's withdrawing objections to the match appeared doomed after young Engel attempted vainly to contact his father at the latter's cafe. He did, however, confer with the elder Engel's attorney, Joseph Zottolli, where he learned of his father's flat refusal.

Berlin Sees End of War

nese staff officers to the western front.

CITE SEA 'VICTORY'

Terauchi, who was shown through the western fortifications, previously had conferred with Hitler while the Fuehrer was with the German forces in Poland and was given an opportunity to see the Nazi armies in action in the east.

The announcement of the unconditional surrender of Poland's battered capital and the "destroying" of a British aircraft carrier by German seaplanes dominated Berlin newspapers today.

(Counter to German reports of the destruction of a British aircraft carrier and of damage to a British battleship, official reports in London said British war vessels came off unscathed in the encounter in the North Sea.

Headlines told Berlin "Warsaw has capitulated" and Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter said the surrender was the "crowning" of a campaign which "will be entered in German history."

PLANE DELIVERY

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, in an order of the day to the German air force, praised the effectiveness of Germany's fliers for preventing Polish warplanes from flying over German soil.

The order was headed "Goering, Field Marshal, Headquarters of the Air Force, the Day of the Capitulation of Warsaw, Sept. 27, 1939."

The press proudly recorded delivery to Rumania of 11 Heinkel pursuit planes of the latest type, calling it a sign that the German aviation industry was so efficient it could supply not only the wartime needs of this nation but also fill foreign orders promptly.

An unofficial but trustworthy source said last night that Ernst Thaelmann, former Communist chieftain in Germany, and others associated with him had been released from prisons and concentration camps as a result of the German-Soviet Russian co-operation.

Hitler Now Plans 'Peace Of Force'

the whole Nazi ideology and structure, the allies are determined to obliterate before peace can be arranged.

Well-informed quarters made this clear today when they said peace proposals will not have the slightest effect on the resolution of the allies to continue the war so long as Hitler and his Nazi colleagues control Germany.

Calling Hitlerism by a different name, by replacing Hitler with Field Marshal Herman Wilhelm Goering, is extremely unlikely to bring Europe any nearer peace, according to authoritative quarters.

Neutral observers hold that virtually the entire Nazi hierarchy must be removed before the Allies will talk peace. Well-informed circles point out, however, that now more than ever the Allies have no desire to cut up Germany and return it to its pre-Bismarck status.

SUDETEN ONLY TO GERMANY

Due to Russia's powerful thrust westwards into Poland and possible action against the Baltic and Balkan states, the Allies hope really to build what Hitler has always professed to be—a bulwark against penetration of Bolshevism in western Europe.

Therefore, a strong Germany benevolently governed by the military clique might be acceptable to the western powers.

Furthermore, there are three points to which the government allies expect to succeed Hitler must agree:

1—Re-establishment of the independence of Poland with her frontiers the same as before the German invasion Aug. 29.

2—Re-establishment of the Czechoslovakian frontier as outlined in the Munich agreement of last September—which would leave Germany the Sudetenland.

3—Evidence of sincere German willingnes to end economic warfare and unprovoked acts of aggression.

Bound for War, Gets Jail Term

For four weeks at least, Francis O'Brien, self-styled aviator from Hartford, Ct., won't enlist with the British because O'Brien had a crash landing today in municipal court and drew a month's sentence.

The sentence was for the alleged theft of a New York woman's typewriter at a Park sq. bus terminal, but Elijah Adlow suggested at the same time that the month in escrow might sober O'Brien up.

O'Brien, it turned out, was in the same court yesterday on a charge of drunkenness and was let go.

Today he was accused of taking the typewriter of Mrs. Florence Nelson of Fifth ave., New York, from a seat in a bus and pawning it for $7.

O'Brien said it was all a mistake; that he thought it was his typewriter, the one he had left in the bus.

Patrolman Arthur W. Blood said a check at bus terminal failed to find any record of a typewriter left by O'Brien.

O'Brien, wearing a neatly clipped mustache, a sport jacket and puttees, declared he was on his way to Canada to enlist with the British and intended pawning his typewriter to get fare money.

CHARGE 30 HITLER OFFICERS SLAIN

threat to Hitler's regime. But as long as peace lasted he was impregnably protected by his own regiment.

"Hitler wrote Fritsch on Aug. 30, requesting him to take a job as 'observation officer on special duty for the army high command' and visit the front to submit criticism.

UNDER HITLER ORDER

"Von Fritsch replied in his customarily icy manner, observing that he would obey any command from the army's highest chief—the Fuehrer. Whereupon Hitler made his request an order.

"Von Fritsch was then assigned one adjutant, two aides-de-camp and one secretary, all four being SS officers and members of the death's head brigade especially assigned to the 'purge command' under SS Oberfuehrer Ernst Prezdetski of Chemnitz.

"They were, however, in army uniforms, bore assumed names, and were properly accredited to the army command. Von Fritsch accepted his staff, set off to the front, made a thorough inspection and prepared his report.

"His capacities were exceptional, since it was he who years ago as commander-in-chief had prepared complete plans for the campaign against Poland. His first report to Hitler criticized the indiscipline of the German troops, their behavior toward the Polish population and what he considered inefficient use of mechanized units.

SHOT IN BACK

"Upon reception of Von Fritsch's first report, his death was decided upon. So Oberfuehrer Przedetzki commanded that he bet shot during action the next day.

"Von Fritsch was standing next to a battery commander, observing through field glasses the effects of a German cannonade.

"Behind him his four SS officers were lying or kneeling. All eyes were turned to the front. During one salvo which deadened any other noise, Von Fritsch's second aide-de-camp shot Von Fritsch in the back with a pistol."

The SS officers, the account relates, then approached the battery commander, showed him their credentials and ordered that the battery be replaced by another.

ANOTHER GENERAL MISSING

Observers recalled a striking parale between the death of Von Fritsch and that of former Chancellor General Kurt von Schleicher, whom Hitler and Goering ordered killed in the blood purge of June 30, 1934.

Allied military circles are interested in knowing why the name of Gen. Halder, chief of staff of the German army, has not been mentioned, at any rate in reports here, since the outbreak of the war.

Lighter-minded individuals express the opinion that Halder, who also was no great enthusiast for Hitler, may have been "Fritsched."

The News Service points out that Hitler has now become considerably embarrassed by the dissident army group and is now determined to exterminate any opposition. Toward this end, he has adopted three methods, according to the agency.

30 OFFICERS BEHEADED

The first applies to all cases in which the accused officers are without special influence. These are tried by special tribunal and shot, according to this account.

The 30 killed on Aug. 1 were said to have been officers of junior rank, tried and condemned to death for treason because they belonged to the newly-formed "Freedom Party."

The second category consists of senior officers with too much influence to be summarily disposed of. Such officers, against whom there may be only a suspicion that they are not wholly loyal to Hitler, are ordered to the most dangerous sector of the front in the hope that enemy bullets will perform the executioner's work.

If, however, the enemyf ails to accomplish the desired end, Heinrich Himmler has a special section of his Gestapo called "Reinigancommand" (meaning purge command) which, the emigre service declared, went into operation in the case of Von Fritsch.

Barrel House Rhythm? Koussevitzky Loves Jive--for 10 Minutes

By LEO GAFFNEY

Ten minutes with barrel house—as ladled out to him by a seven-piece Harlem band—is enough to bring quivers of delight to Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, world famous conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Just 10 minutes though.

"After that," he told his pre-season press conference yesterday in heavily accented English, "you would take me to 'ospital!"

Dr. Koussevitzky at odds with dance-crazy rhythms and the squeals of a modern band? Not at all. He loves the stuff.

The jumpin' jive, it appears, not only has the power to make people dance, but also the glory to make serious composers think — then write "the most interesting music of these days," Dr. Koussevitzky says

WEARS HIM DOWN

And the reason the good Doctor can take his jazz in only 10-minute doses is because it wears him down. He speaks of it as if it were a series of shocks.

"It is so vigorous and exciting," he says.

Dr. Koussevitzky would go further. The idiom of American jazz as a form of musical speech is more potent, its rhythms more complex than the glistening "Gypsy" pages of Brahms, if you please.

But be sure you take the distinguished conductor literally. By "jazz" he does not mean all of it, nor, particularly, the whimpering bleat of most popular songs. He means jazz as a part of the musical alphabet, jazz as a creation, jazz as an element in the national atmosphere.

MUSIC OF OUR OWN

Breathing in such vigor, is it any wonder that the new young American composers in the symphonic form are writing the best music of the day?

Because the national atmosphere is so different in other countries, important music has practically died out of them, Dr. Koussevitzky says.

American music, then, is rising rapidly in the land of the free—and with flashing brilliance. The names of Harris, Hanson, Foote, Copland, Carpenter, Taylor, Thompson, Gershwin and nearly 400 other Americans comprise a repertoire, a literature of their own.

TICKETS ARE FREE

Boston's Koussevitzky has had a principal part in this development. More than ever this year the Boston Symphony Orchestra will feature the music of Americans—not just because of loyalty or patriotism—just because it is the best of the new crop. Dr. Koussevitzky calls it "phenomenal."

Ten full concerts of American works will be given by Koussevitzky and the symphony on Oct. 4 and 6, as announced yesterday.

Tickets, as long as they last, are free for the asking. You have only to write Mr. Judd, Manager, Symphony Hall, Boston.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 28—Very secretly, Constance Bennett has been talking a stage play which, it is expected, J. J. Shubert will produce.

Lily Hatvany's "I Am Different," which starred Tallulah Bankhead, may be her starring vehicle. Not in its present form, but a rewritten version and I am told Shubert would like to have Zoe Akins prepare another treatment in her first free moment.

Whether or not the play which fared badly on the stage last year could be made sufficiently interesting even with Zoe's deft treatment is problematical but La Bennett, like many of our other Hollywood actresses, is definitely looking toward the stage for the coming season.

MONTY WOOLLEY PASSED UP HOTEL CAREER FOR STAGE

STAR AT MET—George Brent, Brenda Joyce and Tyrone Power supply plenty of talent in "The Rains Came," opening today at the Metropolitan.

Monty Woolley Went From Yale to Broadway Success

Monty Woolley, the bearded gentleman from the Hollywood film factories, who is Sheridan Whiteside (nee Alexander Woollcott) in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," at the Plymouth, may be said, for all his continental appearance, to be just about as authentic a New Yorker as one can find in a month's search.

He was actually born on the busiest corner in Gotham, the spot where 42nd at. and Fifth ave. meet, a location popularly described as "the crossroads of the world."

Mr. Wooley's father, it might be explained, was a hotel proprietor and at the time of the future actor's advent into this vale of tears, was operating a well known Fifth ave. hostelry known as the Hotel Bristol. That was back in the late eighties. Subsequently he conducted for 25 years the famous Grand Union Hotel in Saratoga Springs.

His father tried to make a hotel man out of him, but the theater was in his blood from the time that he saw a performance of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" given in the lovely courtyard of the hotel with the booming De Wolf Hopper playing the fat knight, Sir John Falstaff.

Something of its eternal fascination lured him also as a boy when he saw that fairest of all the theater ladies of her day, the fabled Lillian Russell, driving daily through the tree-lined streets of the Springs in her own carriage drawn by a team of "spanking bays," and smiling graciously at all and sundry like a queen out of the story books.

He went to Yale, became president of the dramatic association, subsequently became its director for a decade and later drifted onto Broadway and then to Hollywood.

The theater to him is something that has a nostalgic charm, as he says, "quite beyond the conception of those younger folks of this day and age who know it only in its modern aspects." To him it is sheer romance, just as it is to that other sentimental gentleman, the ebullient Alexander Woollcott, whom he impersonates under a thin disguise, in "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Big Crosby Hit For Olympia Bill

Bing Crosby's best picture, "The Starmaker," is scheduled to top the Washington St. Olympia screen program, starting Saturday. Featured with the cinema crooner are Louise Campbell and Ned Sparks. On the same bill "Bulldog Drummond's Bride," with John Howard and Heather Angel.

Uptown Sports New Marquee

All dressed up and somewhere for you to go is the Uptown. For the new theater season, its marquee has been completely remodelled. Its new marquee now has new green and red neon tubing as well as thousands of new colorful bulbs. The easier for you to see the announcement of the current attractions it has been bordered with flashing bulbs and the letters have been brightly painted.

Abbott Musical's Premiere

Tonight, at New Haven's Shubert Theater, the new Rodgers-Hart musical, "Too Many Girls," will have its premiere performance.

After playing four performances there, Producer-Director George Abbott's first musical comedy of the season will open here at the Shubert, Monday evening.

Featured in the cast is Marcy Westcott, loveliest blonde of last season (Remember her in "The Boys from Syracuse"?); Richard Kollmar, juvenile lead in "Knickerbocker Holiday;" Hal LeRoy dancing juvenile of "Thumbs Up," "Strike Me Pink" and numerous Ziegfeld shows; Mary Jane Walsh.

Cycle Crash—Tense drama is portrayed by this photo, made by a cameraman a few minutes after two boy cyclists crashed into the side of a San Francisco [illegible]. The boys were coasting down hill, suffered critical head injuries. They are Adolph Johnson, and John Turnbull, 17.

King and Queen—Taking a warm personal interest in the arms of the nation, King George and Queen Mary inspect a unit of the air defense of a battleship "somewhere in England."

Hollywood Starlet's Own Make-Up Secrets

1. Inspiration—'Tis a picture of filmstress Madeleine Carroll that starlet Carolyn Lee, 4, is studying. "I can look like that," she says.

2. Rouge—Poets sing of cherry lips and rosy cheeks . . . so why not go to nature and get 'em. Carolyn shows her technique with a plum.

3. Powder—A delicate dusting of fine powder enhances the complexion . . . and Carolyn knows that cake flour is the finest made. So!

4. Beauty!—Without belittlin' Madeleine, Carolyn leaves it to you whether she's failed. Now you see how starlets get that way.

KEEP U. S. OUT OF WAR
—Be Neutral—

NEW ENGLAND police chiefs, holding their fourteenth annual convention in Boston, deplore the absurdity of many old laws still on the American statute books.

Dr. Carleton Simon, criminologist and former deputy police commissioner of New York City, declares:

DON'T KISS BABY!
Said Early Law-Makers

"A law, enacted by Congress many years ago provides a penalty of six months' imprisonment and a fine of $500 for any person writing a check for less than one dollar."

Public opinion will support the stand of the chiefs and Dr. Simon. Puritanical legislation does no harm so long as it remains neglected and forgotten. The big trouble is that someone will remember and enforce it.

Perhaps the bluest of blue laws were those adopted a century and a half ago in Massachusetts. Legislators of that time made it a crime to cross a river without the attendance of an authorized ferryman; to travel, cook food, make beds, sweep houses, cut hair or shave on the Sabbath day, or to buy various lands without permission of the selectmen.

Most harsh of all such legislation was the iron-clad regulation which decreed jail sentences for women who kissed babies on Sunday and provided fines for men who displayed a "lack of reverence" by running to church, instead of walking in a sedate manner.

Annually, various Representatives and Senators promise to look up and advocate the repeal of antiquated statutes. But little, if anything, is ever accomplished.

"A PAIN IN THE NECK" is Playwright George S. Kaufman's non-flattering description of some stage and screen stars.

"If a play is good," he informs Miss Peggy Doyle, Boston Evening American dramatic critic, "it doesn't need a star; if it's a bad play, no star in the world can save it."

Sarah Bernhardt, great actress of the last generation, would have liked that comment, and probably would have added much to it.

When Miss Bernhardt played Theodora, she was Theodora. When the role was Cleopatra, nobody thought of anyone save Cleopatra.

Because this gifted artist was supreme mistress of every item of stagecraft, she seemed really to become the woman she was impersonating.

Today—and this is what Mr. Kaufman deplores—the custom is to subordinate the part to the player's own individuality.

As a result, it is not unusual for an actor to step from the character of small town judge to that of big city gambler with scarcely any alteration in personality.

CIVIL SERVICE TESTS are intended to reveal an applicant's fitness for a particular job. For that reason they should contain questions pertaining to the work the man or woman is expected to do.

This opinion is inspired by the examination which was recently given to members of the Lynn fire department and which, among other questions, asked: "WHAT IS A MARINA?"

One learned fireman correctly answered, "A marina is a dock." Others gave various definitions, ranging from "a female member of the marine corps" to "a sailor's wife."

Now, because of this TRICK question, promotion seekers will have to take a new examination, requiring a needless waste of time and effort.

For the Civil Service division's own information it might be stated that "marina" is so unfamiliar a word that it does not appear in the abridged dictionaries used by most people. It can be found only in the 15-pound unabridged volumes which are not ordinarily carried in men's pockets or women's handbags.

BOSTON REJOICES in the knowledge that the American Legion has selected this city as the site for its 1940 national convention.

We have not forgotten the glorious occasion of that important organization's visit here ten years ago.

And, because we treasure this happy memory, we shall work together, unitedly and untiringly to make next Fall's event bigger, better and a thousand times more enjoyable.

Shadow Pictures

THE shadow pictures that we make . . . the bunny rabbitt, wolf or drake . . . open their mouths and wink their eyes . . . as if quite in their natural guise . . . We wonder sometimes — can they be . . . mere shadows — or reality.

Suppose that we weren't we at all . . . but only shadows on the wall . . . and then, supposing this were true . . . just who would cast the shadows—Who?

—Paul T. Gilbert

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

SHERIFF FITZGERALD of Queens County, N. Y., recruits 1200 deputies to keep his borough neutral and to hunt spies and saboteurs. Such vigilance is to be commended, considering our laxity and the price we paid for it in the period preceding our entry into the World War.

But we aren't in any war yet, and there is reassurance in Mr. Fitzgerald's statement that there won't be any witch-hunting.

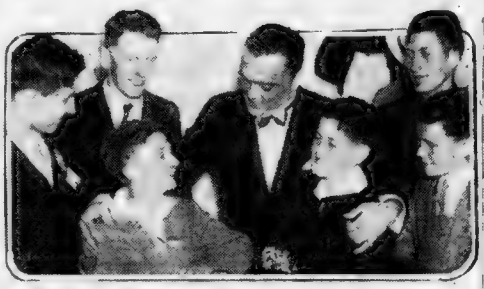
Spy hysteria is one of the least pleasant accompaniments of war tension. Just a jumpy light-socket near your bedroom window and an over-zealous neighbor may be turning you in to the John Laws for signalling to some accomplice in disloyalty.

Then there is to be considered the opportunity which unscrupulous persons have for venting hatred and grudges under conditions of war psychology, or its incipient peace-time prevalence.

IT SEEMS to me that the President's salutary injunction to keep neutral might well carry an admonition not to suspect and persecute our neighbors just because we don't like them. Mr. Fitzgerald says his anti-spy legion is made of doctors, lawyers, professors and other professional men who can be depended upon for good sense and caution in turning in suspects. That is, of course, as it should be.

Counter-espionage is a highly professionalized job, which, happily, has been turned over to the superlatively efficient Federal Bureau of Investigation. A current news story from Washington reveals that more than a year ago J. Edgar Hoover's G-men were indentured for intensive training in spotting wreckers, spies and subversive activity in general.

There is satisfaction in the news that these preparations have been made and are being carried on at a time when it can be done without recourse to extra-legal devices. The liberties and safety of honest citizens are in less jeopardy under skilled and official scrutiny such as this than under the free-for-all of amateur spy-chasing.



"ANY INSIDE INFORMATION, MR. HOOVER?"
Chief G-Man Welcomes Group of Young Admirers

I'm for the utmost vigilance but I believe that one way to keep out of war is to pipe down on detective story thrills and romantic excitements, keep our shirts on and let the professionals attend to all this.

THE AMATEUR detective is a standing joke in our country—the lad who takes a course in trailing evildoers, gets a diploma and a tin badge and starts out on the trail. That has been a considerable ingredient of a lot of our hay-loft reading, and the urge has by no means lessened by the pulp magazine fiction with which millions of our citizenry, principally youthful, have been fed.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—Are you ever annoyed with yourself for not having thought of the doctrine of chances? I wanted very much to leave Huntington, W. Va., last night on a train which would have reached Washington early this morning. The train, however, is a fast train and the railroad people said they could not hold it even for a few minutes.

It did not seem fair to cut my lecture short for my own convenience, particularly as it would have meant no question period and that is usually, to me, the most interesting part of the lecture. So we made up our minds rather reluctantly to take the 1:37 A. M. train.

When we got back to the hotel, after the lecture, it was a little before 10 and we were told that the train we had wanted to take was 25 minutes late. If we had packed, just on the chance of something like this happening, we could easily have made it, for the audience asked only one question of any importance. With a little hurry on leaving the auditorium, we would have been at the station in ample time.

AS IT WAS, having had a late lunch, we went without dinner and had a sandwich and some soup when we got back to the hotel. Then we packed and I had a short visit with Miss Dorothea Campbell, of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Charleston, which is now working so hard to help the women on the Red House government project. It was still only 20 minutes to 12, and we had to wait until 1:37!

MRS. ROOSEVELT
Failed to Take a Chance

I knew that our kind hosts were waiting also to take us to the train and we felt very guilty. But we slept for an hour and I hope they did too. They were so kind to us, and I think Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gibson and Dr. James Allen must have longed to see the last of us.

It is amusing, when you spend a full day in a hotel, to find how many of the young people telephone and would like to speak to "Mrs. Roosevelt," or to come up to see her and get an autograph. Miss Thompson has a weak spot for the young.

She had one particularly long conversation and when she was through she told me that a young Boy Scout at the other end of the telephone was asking if I could not incorporate in my speech the fact that a great many boys in Huntington would like to join the Boy Scouts if someone would just provide the money for their uniforms!

THEY really did not care what they belong to, but they want joining another organization which called itself the Red Shirts, or some such name, and had a camp some eight miles out of town simply because they could not afford to belong to the Boy Scouts. He felt that this new organization was not as good an influence for the Boy Scouts, and was much troubled.

Ten minutes later he was back on the telephone to check up whether Miss Thompson had given me his message. We smiled about it, but just the same I think it is a good sign, for if you can be as keen as that about the Boy Scouts, you are developing a sense of responsibility.

ASTOR FAILS TO GET ROWBOAT RIDE

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Michael Todd, the promoter who produced "The Hot Mikado," sent his family to Bermuda and then joined them . . . His young son confessed that while he was out in the boat a swimmer had tried to climb in—but the boy shooed him away . . . "Son, that's bad," Todd berated. "You'll never be a promoter that way" . . . That afternoon an invitation came from the swimmer who had been rebuffed, and who didn't mind it. The invitation was from Mr. Vincent Astor.

TWO MONTHS AGO Liam O'Flaherty, author of "The Informer," announced that he was quitting America, that Europe was the only place in which to live, and that he was going to Paris . . . Mr. O'Flaherty now has rushed to his farm in Dublin. In a letter last week to a friend here O'Flaherty wrote: "Europe now is like a prize-ring, full of wrestlers walking around each other, hurling insults, never coming to grips—and you feel that it's all been rehearsed."

SIMONE SIMON

A BILL will be introduced in the New York Legislature shortly providing for the payment of due compensation to defendants—or the next of kin—who were convicted of crimes they did not commit. The payment will be made only if the true culprit later is apprehended and convicted . . . Simone Simon, en route to America, has sent radio messages to her friends in New York, declaring that her salary demand for appearing in shows here is $1,500 a week, plus a percentage of the receipts.

* * *

DR. OTTO PREMINGER, who is directing the new Clare Boothe play, will open it in Princeton . . . Preminger visited Princeton before the close of the school year and there renewed his acquaintance with Einstein . . . "It's something like living in Prague—where I was born and spent my youth," Einstein replied . . . "You mean it's wonderful?" asked Preminger . . . "I mean it's like when I used to leave Prague to visit my family in Berlin," Einstein explained. "Away from it I told them Prague was wonderful. But when I returned to live there again—then it was not so wonderful."

JUSTICE BRANDEIS has returned to Washington, where he plans to receive 100 visitors a week . . . Charles Coburn, the veteran star, saw "End of a Day" and arranged to take a print back to Hollywood to have RKO make an American version of this French movie as his next assignment . . . Senator John Bankhead will return to the Capitol to vote for the President's proposed neutrality bill . . . Margot Grahame, who married a wealthy Canadian, is negotiating with Lee Shubert for a new show.

EXCLUSIVE: Ted Williams, the mercurial kid slugger of the Red Sox, has been handed a new contract for next season . . . It happened one day last week . . . The terms were so generous that The Kid was rendered speechless—for a moment or two . . . He has been given a boost of between $7000 and $10,000 over his freshman salary . . . The exact figures will remain a secret, probably, between the parties of the first and second parts . . . But a guess making The Kid a member of the $13,000-$16,000 bracket should not be far astray . . . As Williams was under lease for two years when he joined the Sox last spring, the move to make him happier was a voluntary one by the Sox management . . . Easy to get along with, Williams was not doped as due to do a DiMaggio on the eve of his second year in the big-time . . . But Yawkey felt that simple justice called for an adjustment of the youngster's working agreement.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Two night clubs open tonight . . . Woody Herman's rising young orchestra brings the Flamingo into action, and George Harris, after a full season last year at the Latin Quarter, will take over a new "shell" bandstand at the Bradford Roof (which has been redecorated and terraced) . . . The Bradford's music-stand is a miniature of the "shell" used at the Esplanade for its summer concerts . . . It isn't generally known that Woody Herman's crew is a co-operative outfit on the order of the Casa Loma band . . . Woody's boys, in the main, were members of Isham Jones orchestra, and when Jones quit bandleading three years ago, the men decided to stay together . . . In the background of the band's management is Cy (or Si) Shribman, the Boston ballroom "king" . . . Shribman contributed part of the essential "build-up" money for Tommy Dorsey, Artie Shaw and Glenn Miller . . . He played the same role in aiding the Herman unit.

IN A YEAR WOODY'S services have gone from a market price of $400 nightly guarantee to $1000 nightly. (This, of course, is for ballroom engagements. Bands work cheaper in night clubs and supper rooms which are considered as having show-case value) . . . Newell and Steger (hip, hip, three cheers and hooray) are back at the Cocoanut Grove's Melody Lounge . . . Carolyn Marsh, who trouped with George M. Cohan in "I'd Rather Be Right," has supplanted Deanne Janis as the prima donna at the Mayfair . . . Miss Janis was called to another job, previously contracted on an "if and when" basis . . . One reason why the Boston Housing Authority has declined to make public prices paid for land-taking in the various housing projects is that the list of bought-out owners undoubtedly would be used as a "sucker list" . . . These lists are shopped all over the country at prices as high as a nickel a name . . .

DAVE ROSS, the boss of the pharmacy at Charles Street Jail, is being twitted by friends anent a line in this space the other day . . . Ross was not partying at a hotel when Sheriff Dowd made an unexpected entrance . . . Nor did we say he was . . . But mention of a pharmacist in connection with the Bar Association probe has left Ross open to some spoofing by his friends.

ALL STUDIOS SEEK JOEL McCREA

By Louella O. Parsons

Joel McCrea

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 28—The busiest actor in our village is Joel McCrea, who is not only Paramount's fair-haired boy, but in demand at other studios, too. Edward Griffith has put in a bid for Joel as soon as he finishes De Mille's "Northwest Mounted." I was interested to hear about Griffith's own story, "In Old Virginia," which Virginia Van Upp is preparing. This is the same team that did "Honeymoon in Bali," one of the cleverest of the modern comedy dramas.

The title, "In Old Virginia," is a misnomer, for this is a modern story—so modern that Miss Van Upp is now in the South interviewing the Governor of Virginia and other officials. Shots will be made there and in Washington and, although this sounds expensive, it really will be kept in the limits of wartime economy.

DELORES DEL RIO

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Starting today, I'm in line for mother-in-law jokes. Parsons, Jr., becomes Mrs. King Kennedy, II., this afternoon; nice to see Marjorie Daw and Myron Selznick together at the "Intermezzo" preview, both looking sooo happy; Ginger Rogers, arriving very late, had to sit on the stairs, and she seemed to like it; Mrs. Charles Feldman hostessing a cocktail party Friday for Ethel Borden and Mrs. Vincent Astor, who are here for one day; saw Irene Dunne at Maggie Ettinger's cocktail party. She is battling hay fever. Also had a chance to talk with Gloria Dickson, who looked so pretty in a smart red outfit.

SALLY EILERS, wearing a swank, new black outfit, arrived with Jules Steins; Lupe Velez came with Art Lashelle, and both of them admit it's love. Lupe is far more subdued than she used to be when she and Johnnie were battling; the Jack Warners gave a huge party at the "Elizabeth and Essex" preview and brought all the film elite. If I were a fashion writer, I might be able to describe the gowns the girls told me they planned to wear. Dolores Del Rio in an Irene creation of sables and gold, Joan Bennett in silk jersey, and so on down the line.

* * *

A BETTE DAVIS picture is an event in our town and not in years did so many stars express a wish to attend a premiere; Tony Martin made a beeline for the studio to see his Alice when he got off the plane yesterday; magnificent is the super-adjective applied to Zorina in "On Your Toes." I am not surprised. Zorina won't do "I Married An Angel" on the screen, however, for M-G-M own it. Through the underground route I hear that Jeanette MacDonald will have the Zorina role.

DAILY STORY

Age vs. Youth

I HAVE a friend who is debating the advisability of marrying the man she loves.

He is a clean-cut young fellow, well able to provide a comfortable living; his social position is satisfactory; there are no religious differences; they are thoroughly congenial in every way and are sincerely in love with each other.

Sounds like a perfect match, doesn't it?

And yet Mary hesitates. Her doubts are based on a difference of eight years in their ages—and Mary happens to be the older.

In these days of beauty shops, modern rules of health, and almost miraculous medical discoveries, all of which can do wonders in keeping a woman looking and feeling young, it seems foolish for a woman to deny herself happiness because of a minor factor such as age.

A genuine congeniality is much more important, and more of a deciding factor in making a marriage permanently happy, than any other thing.

AS A MATTER of fact, I believe that such a marriage would be more likely to succeed than the usual situation in which the husband is older.

A wife who is younger than her husband is liable to become complacently self-satisfied—to slump after having gotten her man and settled down at home.

On the other hand, the wife who feels herself starting marriage under a handicap such as a few years seniority is going to put forth every effort to overcoming that handicap.

She is likely to be neater, more companionable, more pliable to adjustment than the average wife.

A WOMAN back in my home town married a man who is nine years younger than she, to the dismay of all the townspeople, who predicted all sorts of catastrophes.

Today, after 21 years of married life, they are the happiest couple I know.

So I am advising Mary to stop crossing bridges that she will probably never reach.

Everything in life is a gamble, of course—marriage as well as everything else.

But I am sure that she will not find the cards against her because of her age; on the contrary, she may find it is the ace which gives her a winning hand.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

SO THEY ROUNDED up the storks! Yes, it's a true story—but don't laugh yet! It happened in Hollywood, not so long ago, either. We Girls had started to bob our hair, wear "divided skirts" and yell for Equal Rights. So, since things were Going To The Dogs at any rate, some daring director decided to profit thereby.

And proceeded to pull a shocker wherein the Blushing Bride was depicted bending over certain Little Garments while the Prospective Papa tottered with surprise, gasping, "How come, Mabel?"—or words to that effect.

WAS IT NOT a touching tableau? asked the pleased Director. Yes, it was NOT, roared the outraged Censor. Had he gone crazy, showing the Facts of Life like that, plain as punch? FOR PETE'S SAKE, WHY NOT? responded the indignant film king.

There was a Perfectly Respectable Married Lady—with a ring on her left hand to prove the fact—what was wrong with HER having a baby?

"EVERYTHING!" howled the Censor. Didn't he know that all Nice Children believed that Babies were brought by Storks? How did he s'pose they'd feel when they discovered otherwise?

"Storks? STORKS! So that was all he wanted, breathed the relieved Director. Just a stack o' storks? Stick around, Boys, and we'll fix that in a jiffy! And fix it he did. Before you could say Papa Dionne, there were Storks all over that sequence! Storks popping out of the eves . . . peeping down the chimney . . . practically nesting in the Little Garments.

Now at last would the Great Clean American Public be satisfied? But the Censor wasn't taking any chances. He knew his G. C. A. P. So with a firm and final blue pencil—HE STRUCK OUT THE STORKS!

SO NOW you may laugh—provided, of course, that you think it's funny. Personally, I don't.

To the contrary, I consider that whole Shush Era to be the most stupid, absurd, disgusting and frequently tragic era in our history.

Why the proudest, happiest and most beautiful period in a woman's life should be treated as a mystery, approached in ignorance and fear and attended with misery and shame, has always passed my comprehension.

And for the hundredth time I'm doffing my hat to Don Quixote Winchell for tilting at our most vicious windmill and welcoming the baby as a Blessed Event.

Dowd Aides Refused Credit Union Funds

County employes under control of Sheriff John F. Dowd have been barred as borrowers from the Boston Employes' Credit Union, it was admitted today by officials of the organization.

These officials admitted the truth of information coming to the Boston Evening American—that the action taken against the sheriff's department is similar to that taken against employes under former Superior Civil Court Clerk John Patrick Connolly.

Connolly resigned in midsummer while charges against him by the Boston Bar Association were pending in Supreme Court.

Sheriff Dowd has made it known that the bar association is also said to be investigating his office.

The Boston Employes Credit Union is an organization in existence since 1922, and since its organization thousands of city and county employes have borrowed various sums on the strength of their employment.

The barring of employes in the superior civil clerk's office and in the sheriff's department is the first of its kind ever voted by the directors of the union, officials admitted.

They explained that the vote was taken because it was feared there would be discharges in these departments and that the credit union would suffer losses.

U. S. Carried, Got No Cash

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

When you talk about cash-and-carry don't forget we're still carrying 'em for the last war.

Those were the days when credit was as loose as rubble and a man's skywriting was as good as his bond.

We did the carrying but it wasn't cash. Our books are still as open as a union depot. How about paying a little on account? On account of what? On account of we don't trust 'em anymore.

SON SAVES DAD, 77, IN FIRE

Fire nearly cost the life of a 77-year-old Waltham man today and seven other persons, including five children, were forced to flee from their home.

The near-victim, John F. Foster a retired contractor, was found unconscious on the floor of his third floor bedroom in a four-apartment house in Hastings ave., Waltham.

He was rescued by his son, Leo Foster, as the son's wife and five children from 5 to 17 years old fled to the street.

The elder Foster's bedclothing, mattress and bedroom wall were in flames.

He was resuscitated by firemen and police after they had worked over him for three quarters of an hour with a respirator. Firemen blamed careless smoking.

Plan Parley On Fewer Taxis

Taxicab owners, it was announced today, will hold a meeting at 11 a. m. tomorrow in police headquarters to discuss the question of reducing the number of cabs in Boston to a maximum of 900.

The meeting is the result of a resolution adopted by the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor convention a few weeks ago in Boston, to the effect that there are too many cabs in the city, making it impossible for drivers to earn a living wage in keeping with American standards.

The resolution was to ask Police Commissioner Timilty to exercise his power and reduce the number of cabs to a minimum of 900.

At present there are about 1525 cabs operating, with some of the owners required to pay drivers a minimum wage of $15, although it is said that not a few drivers find it difficult to take in that sum.

He Warms House Too Much; Fire Damage $800

His first furnace fire of the season was an expensive undertaking today for Joseph Mele of Alewife parkway, Somerville.

He left the furnace door open and went upstairs to breakfast with his wife Margaret and children, Alfred, 13, and Gloria, 17.

Sparks from the furnace ignited rubbish. Five minutes later the family was driven from the two-story building. Firemen fought the blaze for 30 minutes. Damage was estimated at $800.

Mele told firemen:

"I just wanted to warm the house up."

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

IN PREPARING for her wedding on Oct. 7, Katharine G. Day will encounter no difficulty in supplying the first requirement in the traditional jingle about brides, which ends "something borrowed, something blue," for she is becoming the bride of Mr. Old (Bruce Scott Old to be exact) . . .

The bridegroom-to-be, son of Captain Edward H. H. Old, U. S. N., and Mrs. Old of Norfolk, Va., is, of course, not what his name implies, for he graduated from college in 1935 and in June, 1938, received his doctorate from M. I. T. . . .

An attractive bevy of attendants, headed by Virginia Richmond as maid of honor, will precede Katharine down the aisle of the Second Church in Newton . . . Reinette Plimpton will be one of the bridesmaids, together with Mrs. Austin Adams of Middlebury, Ct., Aline Stump and the bridegroom's sister, Anne E. Old of New York City, Jane Rovensky of Greenwich, Ct., and Elizabeth Olmstead of Morristown, N. J. . . . Miss Olmstead and Miss Rovensky, classmates of the bride at Westover School, came on to Boston for her debut dance at the Algonquin Club in the autumn of 1935 . . .

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ashley Day, Jr., of Newton at whose home the reception will be held . . . Since her debutante days she has been studying portraiture at the Childe Walker School . . . The couple will make their home in Bethlehem, Pa. . . .

Cynthia Northey Weds Soon

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN SNOW (Katharine Kinsman) who have been Mr. and Mrs. since last summer, are coming on from New Canaan, Ct., next week to visit the latter's parents and take part in the wedding of Cynthia Northey and Walter F. Martin, Jr., on Oct. 6, in Salem . . .

On the wedding eve they will give a bridal dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kinsman of Newburyport . . . Selecting lasting gifts for her friends is a cinch of Mrs. Snow, whose father is president of a large silver company . . . and undoubtedly her gift to Cynthia will be among the most cherished of the bride's collection . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Snow will be best man and matron of honor respectively at the Northey-Martin nuptials . . . Other attendants will include Octavia Peirson, Mrs. William E. Dr. Eddy's Question Box

Tested and Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau

DOES THE GOVERNMENT EXAMINE COSMETICS? } WILL IRRADIATION BOOST MILK'S VALUE?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY
Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

I recently had an argument with a friend who criticized me for using an unknown brand of rouge. She said that I couldn't tell whether or not it was made under the proper conditions. However, I said the government required all lotions, powders, etc., that are applied to the skin to be made by a licensed chemist, or that any one engaged in this business must obtain a license and pass a test to determine his competency. Am I right? R. H.

I am afraid you have a wrong view of the extent of Government control over lotions, powders, etc., that are applied to the skin. There is at present pending in Washington a bill which would give to the Food and Drug Administration the right to examine and condemn or approve cosmetic preparations, but just now no such power resides in the Government.

At the present time your main reliance is to buy of firms who have established a reputation for reliability, or you may safely rely on the products carrying Good Housekeeping Bureau Seal of Approval, as such products have been tested by us to make sure they do not contain harmful substances.

Irradiation Makes Vitamin D

In connection with a charity clinic we have become interested in irradiated canned milk and shall greatly appreciate any information you give us about it. Does such irradiation add to the food or health value of the milk? Does it increase the vitamin D content or the vitamin D principle? MRS. D. O.

Natural milk contains vitamin D in inactive form. When the milk is treated by irradiation with ultraviolet light, the rays of light convert the inactive vitamin D into active vitamin D, producing about VITAMIN D is the anti-rachitic vitamin, because its absence results in rickets. It is obtained by free exposure to sunlight and by the inclusion in the diet of cod liver oil.

50 Steenbock units of vitamin D to the liquid quart. This vitamin is not injured by the process of evaporation, so that the canned evaporated milk provides active vitamin D in usable form.

Irradiation actually increases the food value of milk since, without any damage to the other nutrient factors already present, it adds to the milk another nutrient factor which the body needs.

In other words, it is "milk plus." Irradiated milk provides insurance against rickets. One should, however, always consult a doctor, because the amount of vitamin D needed by the individual infant can be determined only by medical examination.

There Will Be No Such Tendency

If cream is left on the face overnight, will it have any tendency to cause hair to grow? A. M. S.

No cream or oil applied to the face can directly stimulate the growth of hair. Superfluous hair is usually brought about by the action of certain gland secretions, and external treatments will not affect hair growth. In fact, if some cream or lotion that would actually stimulate hair growth could be found, it would immediately have a very wide market.

You Can be Beautiful

Replenish Skin With Youth

By ARLINE GOULD

HOW TO TURN yours into a real night of beauty . . . and never give your unheeding pillow a line-erasing treatment with your very best softening cream! That's the lesson taught by a New York specialist . . . who is wise in the ways of keeping smooth and unlined the complexions of those who live the high-geared life of glitterbugs!

She has just introduced a wondrously concocted cream whose principal ingredient is a set of oils which reproduce as closely as science can do it . . . the very oil-moisture which is present in your skin cells. It may be present in great quantities. Then you're young and have never a thought of a wrinkle. And you don't need this cream. It may be present in depleted, small quantity. Then your skin is wrinkling and lax, and you need it more than anything!

In order to see to it that this cream is given every chance to exert its undeniable benefits, every jar is accompanied by a feather-light mask of oiled silk, with slits for eyes, nose and mouth. You wear it all night long with the greatest of comfort. And awaken with a complexion renewed and invigorated!

But that isn't all. There is also a little book of exercise magic. Exercise for the practically unused muscles in your face which govern the tautness of tissue . . . around the eyes, the mouth and under the chin. These are new exercises, controlled by a series of expressions. And you'll find that they give a pliable, firm look to your skin.

If you'd like to learn about this distinct departure in beauty treatments, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, weekdays until 5:30, or write, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Love

He Still Eyes Other Girls

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The young man I'm in love with claims he loves me very much but he fails to show it when out in company. If there are other girls around, he pays them more attention than he does me. Do you think this is right? How can I keep him more interested in me? Is it true that a girl should keep her boy friend guessing, to get him to cater to her wishes? PAMELA

I should think it would depend entirely on what sort of a young man he is, whether "a girl should keep her boy friend guessing." If he's the type more interested in the pursuit than the capture, then I think guessing is the thing. If he's the faithful type, the uncertain method will be the last thing to try.

Perhaps he pays attention to other girls because he doesn't want the world to know he's deeply interested in you. Better not show too plainly how much you care for him.

READY to serve, easy to prepare, delectable to taste, canned mushrooms are a "thrifty touch" with a luxurious flavor, and are available the year 'round for dishes 'round the clock.

Canned Mushrooms Add Delicate Flavor to Foods

By MARTHA LEE

The delight of the epicure since Hippocrates praised their goodness in 500 B. C., mushrooms were long considered a luxury food. Years of research, scientific laboratory tests, utmost sanitary conditions in plants and the expenditure of millions of dollars by the industry to raise mushrooms scientifically for the market have produced the "ultimate in mushrooms" and made them a thrifty buy for American homemakers.

Of interest to menu-planners is a seal of purity which, affixed to the recipe sticker on the cans is a guarantee of quality, and an assurance to the public of a scientifically pure and rich product.

This little recipe sticker not only contains many new and interesting recipes for canned mushrooms, but is valuable for the many unusual and delightful serving ideas to add variety to the menu.

Mushroom Serving Suggestions

1—For breakfast try mushrooms in scrambled eggs or omelet.

2—Add canned mushrooms, chopped, to left-over mashed potatoes, shape into patties and fry.

3—For luncheon, marinate the little button mushrooms in French dressing and toss them in your salad.

4—Marinate canned mushrooms in French dressing made with lemon juice; add them to your recipe for chicken salad. Or chill a can of canned Consomme Madrilene and add marinated mushrooms, just before serving.

5—Put a thick slice of canned tongue into a baking dish, cover with sliced canned mushrooms and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) until brown. Try baking hamburger steak that way, too.

6—For supper, try baked tongue and mushrooms, recipe for which is given on this page today.

7—Add button mushrooms, chopped, to your favorite sauce recipe—brown sauce, cream sauce, or tomato sauce.

BAKED TONGUE AND MUSHROOMS

Brown several slices of onion in four tablespoons drippings or butter in frying pan. Remove onion; slice canned (or cooked) tongue into thick slices; dip in flour and brown slowly in seasoned fat in frying pan. Remove to baking dish and arrange in over-lapping slices. Pour one cup of milk into frying pan and simmer gently two or three minutes; pour over tongue in baking dish, put one cup button mushrooms (1 8-oz. can) over the meat. Bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) until gravy is creamy and meat and mushrooms are heated through. Serve hot.

MUSHROOM and HAM SOUFFLE

2 cups medium white sauce
½ cup grated American cheese
¾ cup minced celery
1½ tsp. minced pimiento
1 cup mushrooms, cooked or canned
¾ cup cold chopped boiled ham
4 eggs, separated
¾ tsp. curry powder
1½ tsp. grated onion

To white sauce, add cheese, celery, pimiento, mushrooms, ham, well-beaten egg yolks, curry powder and onion. Mix well; then fold in stiffly beaten whites. Turn into a greased casserole and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 35 minutes, or until nicely browned. Makes 6 portions.

The PRIVATE LIFE of Dr. Hilary

by HENRY and SYLVIA LIEFERANT
AUTHORS OF "DOCTORS' WIVES"

"I USED to lie in bed wondering why you were so good to me," Phoebe said. "Sometimes I thought you cared too—that you were—in love with me——" She closed her eyes.

She was growing hysterical. He could think of nothing now but to soothe her hysteria. It wouldn't do to have a hysterical patient in the office. The world which had receded rushed back upon Martin now—the walls righted themselves.

They were the walls of a professional consultation room, and here were the screen, the telephone, the day book, the list of calls, all the appurtenances of professional order.

"Don't. Phoebe — Phoebe, please."

"Sometimes I was sure of your love. Often I thought you were going to kiss me—to tell me you loved me. Lately I began to realize you had no heart. You're cold. You don't care what you did to me. Now you don't even want to see me again. If I die, I tell you, I can't stand it."

"Stop it!" he ordered, amazed that he could be so ruthless, so firm with her.

But ruthlessness and firmness were the medicine for hysterical women.

"I said stop it, Phoebe!"

Her words had suddenly an old familiar ring, almost an unpleasant one. So did his.

The numerous echoes of other scenes and situations which he had disposed of easily. Something happened to Martin, then. The thing that happens to an actor when he hears a well-remembered cue, that happens to a man groping in the dark when he finds the latch on his own gate. He picks up the cue—he lifts up the latch and enters.

The years of Martin's training suddenly asserted themselves to wield their power again.

AN ORDER

"Get quiet at once!" he said.

"Aren't you ever going to see me again?"

"Not if you carry on this way."

"Don't send me off. I'll do anything you say."

The answers rose easily to his lips, but he spoke gently now, carefully. "Don't you know, child, I'm old enough to be your father?"

Her eyes were still closed. "You're not. It isn't true."

"Phoebe—a lot of women fall in love with their doctors, as they do with their first music teachers and dancing masters, and art teachers, too, I dare say. You'll laugh at it next year."

"I won't. I'll always remember you. Oh, I know you're married—happily. You have a wonderful child—Mrs. Hilary helped you. I didn't know you when she helped you. I'd have done it too, if I'd been there.

"Open your eyes!" he commanded, "if you faint I'll have to call Skean in."

Her eyes flew open. She looked about, like a traveler returned from a dim, distant land. Her heavy breathing subsided. She wiped her eyes, and a look of horror darkened their hydrangea-blue clarity.

Suddenly Martin felt a great pity for this girl. He shared her shame at her outburst and wished that she had not bared herself.

Phoebe said solemnly, "Forgive me. I knew all along I shouldn't have felt this way. How could you have any interest in me—and it wasn't fair to Mrs. Hilary. She's the most wonderful person I ever met, next to my mother. She's done so much for me. I think she's taught me how to bear the responsibility of money if I should ever make any—with grace and humility. I'll write to her and thank her."

"You realize, Phoebe, what I did—was for her?"

"I'm so sorry I forgot about her—for the moment. Just let me go now. You'll never hear from me again."

They rose at the same moment. Their eyes met hastily, and Phoebe turned. Her head was high, her shoulders squared. The sun filtering through the slatted blind raised bars of gold between them.

Martin was shaken. As yet he felt neither relieved nor free.

He wondered whether patients felt so after a major operation, bereft of some cherished part but subconsciously aware that the cutting had been necessary.

So it had been as simple as that. One tense naked moment. An old fire-horse responding to a bell, a doctor repeating an old and tested prescription. Could he have used the formula if he had really loved Phoebe?

If Nora should suddenly grow hysterical on his hands, would he be so quick to deal out the conventional cure?

In his heart he knew that he had been prepared to slap Phoebe, had she gone a step further.

CHERISHED DREAM

That she thought she was in love with him, he didn't doubt. But she was young. She would forget. It was natural for her to have formed a sentimental attachment for the man who had been her only visitor, her benefactor.

Her work would soon consume that surplus emotion. He saw that her need to earn a living was a blessing.

Only he hoped he had not been too harsh, too cold with her. He could not think harshly or cold of her, although these exhibitions were always singularly unlovely to him.

Only this morning she had been a cherished dream, a bitter yearning, and for that reason she would always be a fragrant, ever-receding memory.

He had never been a party to a scene of this kind without sharing it with Nora, sometimes in irritation, sometimes in amusement.

For what he had wanted Phoebe to mean to him in this one insane period of his life, he would keep her secret.

Not even Nora would know he had been jolted to his senses. Nora. He must think of Nora, but the phone rang.

"Yes?" he answered automatically.

Skean's laconic voice. "Miss Halliday wants to talk with you."

"Miss Halliday? Miss Halli—"

"You set her on a trip around the world once. Remember?"

Yes, he remembered. To her, too, he had said, "I'm old enough to be your father. You'll forget." Was this to come back at him forever?

Skean was making the connection.

"Hello, Miss Halliday!" Be cheerful. Be casual. Other problems are ahead of you. There's Nora.

"Doctor Hilary!" the voice at the other end sang. "You are the most wonderful doctor. You know I really did start around the world—"

"Are you back so soon?"

"I only got to India," she laughed. "I'm going to be married. He's an English army officer. How did you know I would meet him if I took a trip?"

Miss Halliday gurgled on until with appropriate congratulations he managed to cut her off.

(Will Dr. Hilary, be able to regain Nora's confidence? Don't miss tomorrow's important chapter.)

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Business Spurt In Second Phase

U. S. Trade Conditions are now enacting the second of a two-part playlet . . . Subtitled "The Response to War" . . . And billed to run until further notice . . . It will deal with the exciting things happening to domestic business . . .

SEPTEMBER'S . . . Third week as shown on the chart, witnessed the most stimulating performance in three years . . . All components of the business activity index played sparkling roles . . . With freight carloadings and steel ingot production shifting top honors . . . And business analysts serving as impromptu barkers loudly assert, "It is only the beginning" . . . The graph line has reached the highest level for the year . . . With the normal expansion months ahead, it is almost inevitable that the highs of 1937, last previous good revival year, will be closely approximated if not exceeded . . .

THE MARKET . . . Is tossing on troublesome cross-currents . . . As war babies are sold rails, utilities and a few specialties find favor . . . It is the sort of a situation that makes traders and professional observers decidedly uncomfortable . . . For they know that it must be ridden out shortly or disaster in the form of overturned prices will hit the market . . . Exciting action is all right in reasonable amounts but prices never succeed in going two places at once . . . And with some groups under pressure as others find favor that is just the situation . . .*

COOPERATION . . . Between the rail and industrial average is the need of the moment . . . The latter has refused to lift as the former steadily reached for new highs . . . And unless the situation is changed by industrials following the upside in the next session or so we look for a sharp shake-out . . . From a term investment standpoint such an affair can be ridden out as an expected incident in the long time voyage toward profits . . . But for a trading position it is a catastrophe . . . Accordingly stop loss protecting orders should be hoisted close up under lows of the past week or ten days . . .

REACTION . . . And a stiff one in here would be a good thing . . . It would clear away stale long positions while encouraging use of new money . . . The technical position would be greatly strengthened by such a happening . . . Groups most likely to find favor are wool textiles, steel, shipbuilding, chemical, coal, aviation and metal . . . Buying enthusiasm will also be fired if rails are able to drag the industrials to a new high . . . For then traders will say an all clear signal has been given . . . We favor a reaction before a new start . . . But think a good swing will follow an upside break of the industrial stalemate . . .*

• • •

ODDS AND ENDS . . . The method of coping with recent market followed here was to concentrate on backward issues—rails, etc. . . . Now protection of trading profits or nimble switching is going to be called for . . . If a rise demanding the latter course, the same issues favored for reaction buying should replace at least part of other holdings . . . Many observers think Pacific Mills a most likely textile issue . . . Others think the coppers have had enough rest . . . Steels are not without friends . . . On the basis prices are stiffening and similar operating rates a few years ago produced much higher prices . . . It is the old story of earnings considerations dominating the trend . . . Regardless of day to day flip flops . . . And the long term, keep going with the tide view is far and away the best for the average market follower.

Sellers Drive Stock Market Leaders Down

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (INS)—Noon Stock Exchange prices: Bethlehem Steel 80¾, off 1¾; U. S. Steel 73½, off 1⅛; General Motors 53¾, off 1¼; Chrysler 88½, off 2¾; Allied Chemical 184½, off 3½; duPont 162½, off ½; N. Y. Central 21⅛, off 1; Chesapeake & Ohio 44, off 1¼; Douglas 76, off 2; J. I. Case 87, off 2½; U. S. Rubber 44½, off ½; American Smelting 55, off ½; Eastman Kodak 157, off 1½; American Telephone 160½, off 1¾.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (INS) The stock market worked lower today in a carryover of selling from yesterday's late irregularity.

Starting lower, leaders showed losses running to more than 3 points in blue chips before support developed. Losses were reduced in the second hour when firming tendencies developed.

Allied Chemical was the biggest loser, dropping more than 3 points before support apeared. DuPont and Air Reduction came back after first hour weakness.

Steel shares started with losses running to more than a point in Bethlehem, but pared these to fractions by midday.

Rails met heavy profit-taking. Losses ran to 2 points in Union Pacific.

Chrysler regained most of a loss of more than 2 points. General Motors sagged. Fall of more than 2 points in Case was outstanding in farm implements.

Utalities were fractionally lower. There was considerable pressure on coppers, losses exceeding a point. Elsewhere losses were in the majority, as in aviations, oils and rail equipments.

There were a few strong spots, including the rubber shares and Westinghouse in the electricals.

ALLEN'S STORE OPENS NEW DOORS FRIDAY

With their Back Bay building entirely remodelled, Allen's Cut Rate Perfumery Store opens its doors for business tomorrow at Massachusetts ave. as the first of a new type of super-stores of the Allen chain.

The new store, under supervision of A. Allen Johnson, president, adjoins the original Allen store and includes several other stores recently leased.

Among many new departments added is the soda fountain and luncheonette. Floor space in the new store increases by 400 per cent that formerly occupied by the company.

The fountain and luncheonette will be staffed by Boston men and girls, with only the finest of products used.

During several years the business of the original Allen's Back Bay store gradually grew to the point where the space was not sufficient for the increasingly large stock and merchadise required to supply the patronage without becoming handicapped by the lack of customer floor space. Plans for the enlargement of the store were made several years ago, but the consummation of them had to await the expiration of leases of adjoining stores on Mass. ave. and Belvidere st. before the additional space cou'd be obtained.

Arrangements to obtain the additional stores were completed by Mr. Johnson this spring. The plans were revised and brought up to date and work on the remodeling of the building and construction of the super store began early in August.

LATIN AMERICA IN TRADE QUERIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—A new crew of commerce department business experts is sifting millions of dollars worth of trade inquiries from Latin America as a result of the European war.

The exact amount involved, the number of inquiries which will turn into actual orders, and the items concerned have not been disclosed.

But now that the war has virtually cut Germany off from some good South American customers and has occupied the industry of England and France with military orders, government experts argue that the United States is the natural place for Latin America to go shopping.

The first result has been a flood of letters and cables from Latin American firms wanting to know whether they can buy specified items here, how much they cost, what credit can be arranged, what currency exchange obstacles may have to be overcome.

In some cases, enterprising Latins have inquired what American firms might need extra salesmen or agents in Latin America.

To handle this flood of inquiries, an official said, many of the Commerce Department's new experts have been drafted to analyze and expedite results. It is the biggest job that has yet come their way since Secretary Hopkins organized a division of industrial economics under Richard V. Gilbert a few months ago.

The main load of the Latin-American trade situation has fallen on Dudley P. K. Wood. War finance problems are being tackled by Gerhard Colm, a naturalized former reparations expert of Germany later associated with an investment banking firm in New York.

UNEMPLOYMENT DROPS 4.3 P. C.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP)—The national industrial conference board reported today that unemployment in the United States declined 4.3 per cent in August to the lowest point since December, 1937.

The number of jobless were estimated at 9,424,000, compared with 9,852,000 in July and 10,601,000 in August a year ago.

The conference board stated that total employment rose almost half a million in August to 45,263,000, the largest since November, 1937. The increase was found to be mainly due to a steady upward trend in all branches of industrial employment.

FINISHED GOODS PRICES CLIMBING

By Associated Press

Hide and leather prices, along with quotations on wool and worsteds, have increased sharply in Boston markets since the outbreak of the European war.

Maxwell Fields, secretary of the New England Shoe and Leather Ass'n, said the price of hides had increased about 45 to 50 per cent since Sept. 1, while leather prices had advanced about 20 per cent.

These increases, Fields said, had brought about a 5 to 10 per cent hike in the wholesale price of shoes but no retail increases thus far.

The yard price of worsteds was reported increased from 10 to 20 per cent yesterday, the third boost since the war began, bringing the current quotation to 40 to 60 cents a yard, or about 30 per cent above the pre-war prices.

Shot Gun Guess: Reds Picked to Win Series

DON'T LOOK NOW, BUT I AM CONCEDING the Cincinnati Reds the short end to the pennant, and I think they will win the World Series. This may prove another piece of folly, but a sport writer can't go around pretending to call the turn by weighing stale facts all the time. So this is just a shot-gun guess based on what I like to call intuition, which is another name for rolling the dice for the whole jackpot or nothing. I am picking the Reds to win four games to the Yankees three and keeping a little bicarbonate handy in case I have to eat this prediction.

AUSTEN LAKE

How do I get that way?

Frankly I don't know!

The Yankees of 1939 are virtually the same people who did such a rousing job of work on the Cubs last year (four straight!). They have hammered the American League silly again this year. They have a wider range of, if not the individual, pitching than the Reds, who were lucky to win their pennant in a league generally reckoned to be inferior. So what?

So I am gambling on the tide of Cincinnati inspiration, an indefinite and much disregarded force in sport which sometimes transforms mediocrity into mastery. For there is something immeasurable in the human makeup which prompts men to perform the improbable. No man is more dangerous than one without hope.

Pitching Is King

LET'S GET TECHNICAL, BEARING in minid that it's a poor auditor who can't find figures to fit any argument. As the Yankees moved through the American League last summer they represented, beyond any question, the most annihilating ball club ever assembled.

They lead the league in homeruns (160-odd to date). They have three players to one for the Reds who have driven in more than 100 runs (Yankees—DiMaggio, Dickey, Gordon; Reds—McCormick). They have made opposing pitchers slap-whacky with a batting order that offers no respite from top to bottom. They lead an able Boston team by 17 games in a league supposed to be superior, while the Reds are squeeking through by the width of their finger nails. Certainly on paper the Yankees should sweep another Series and become the first major league team to win four straight championships.

Yet, in a short series like this, pitching is king and Bucky Walters has won 27 games while his running mate, Paul Derringer, has won 24. Only one Yankee pitcher has won more than 20 games, Red Ruffing, the perspiring and moon-faced ex-Red Sox who has won 21. Defensively both teams lead their leagues—there's not much to choose from there.

I think this! That when it comes to quick thinking and finely shaded tactics Billl McKechnie, the old Braves maestro, will outguess Joe McCarthy, the little Santa Claus character who manages the Yankees, two for one. For Bill has shaped his pennant out a patches—weedling, scolding and phensgling his lineup for five months while Joe has merely had to pencil his lineup and relax on the end of his spine for the rest of the day.

Unexpected Heroes

PERHAPS THIS IS WISHFUL THINKING on my part. Man-for-man the Yankees are a better ball club, just as man-for-man Louis was a better fighter than Schmeling when they first met, and Baer was a better battler than Braddock when Max grimicked away his title. So all this pre-match, analytical fog shovelling sums up to—just Tosh! Because World Series games are usually decided by individual feats and unseen miracles to the utter discredit of the season's trend and the figure fiddlinigs of us "experts." A ball caroms off an infield footprint, a pitcher lets one slip inadvertently into a homerun slot, a shortstop foozles his throw to the plate. The history of the Series is rich in such tragi-heroisms, and its stars have been unexpected athletes like Pepper Martin in 1931, Pete Fox in '35, Jake Powell in '36, Red Rolfe in '37 and Frank Crosetti in '38. The unpredictability of these Series is their charm.

McKechnie is still baseball's No. 1 manager in my book. He has lifted Cincinnati to the second peanant in its history, virtually by the club's bootstraps. For, I still rate the Cubs and Cardinals as better balanced ball clubs than the Reds—the consensus choice of the newsmen at the start of this season notwithstanding. He must be good to have won pennants with three separate National League clubs (Pirates in '35, Cardinals in '28 and Reds in '39). No other man has done that!

Bees Were Losers

SO, TWO YEARS AFTER THE BOSTON BEES let him leak through their fingers, Bill has demonstrated his magic. He took a seventh place team to second in 1937 and won his pennant a year later. Why? Was it the unlimited spending power of Owner Powell Crosley? Or the better ability of Cincinnati scouts to fan the weeds for material. Or pure luck? Perhaps there was a strong mixture of all of these. But my guess is that Bill made more of material than another man in his boots might have done. Meanwhile the Bees, with their customary record of hard luck, are trailing in seventh place. McKechnie must have something!

WEARY REDS BID AGAIN FOR FLAG AGAINST CARDS

CINCINNATI, Sept. 28—Manager McKechnie's Redlegs have one more chance to win the National League pennant. They play the Cards for the last time this season today and a victory over the Gas House gang assures them of the flag.

Paul Derringer, who has won 24 games this season against seven losses, will try and accomplish this feat. He is the second trump card in McKechnie's hand. Bucky Walters with 27 victories failed yesterday when the Cards, with Fiddler McGee tossing World Series ball, shut them out, 4 to 0.

The Reds continue to lead by 2½ games but are anxious to end the trying stretch run today. Derringer has had his longest rest of the hard drive. The big fellow has been sitting back for four days and with any sort of hitting on the part of his teammates should annex the flag.

REDS TIRED CLUB

The Reds are starting to show signs of wear. Their hitting has been the poorest for the past four weeks. McGee's fast ball had the Reds poking at the sphere like a lot of farm hands with a hoe.

Manager McKechnie, who is known for his ability in instill fight into the toughest of veterans, will no doubt send his club out flying at the word from the umpire today. It's the opinion of close followers of baseball that the Reds are tired after the strenuous drive.

Manager Ray Blades has his troupe at fever heat. The club is playing better in this series than at any time this season. Blades refused to name his pitcher for today's game, figuring on taking advantage of the wobbly condition of his opponents who hope to play the Yankees in the world series.

DAVIS LOGICAL CHOICE

Curt Davis is the logical choice yet there's a posibility that Max Lanier, a freshman sensation who held Chicago to four hits Sunday, may be his choice.

More than 25,000 Reds' fans burned almost silently as the Fiddler McGee did his stuff. The young right-hander with the blazing fast ball was in rare form. Two of the four widely-scattered blows he permitted were scratched through the infield, Walters contributing one of them.

Only once did the Reds threaten to score on nim, in the third inning, when an error by Stu Martin on a perfect double-play ball helped the locals fill the bags with two out. Then Bill bore down and made Frank McCormick pop weakly to short.

Going back to the first game of yesterday's doubleheader, when Bill Myers poked a home run with two on, the Reds had piled up 24 consecutive scoreless innings, and the end did not appear to be in sight as McGee fanned Wally Berger for the final out.

BERGER MISSES HOMER

Berger, incidentally, came closest to ending the drought in the fourth inning, when he knocked one over the left field wall that barely went foul. Otherwise, the leaders hit only two really hard balls to the outfield.

BOOT!—Bucky Walters safe at second in third inning of game with Cards as Stu Martin muffs Shortstop Brown's toss on Werber's roller. No harm was done, however, for Fiddler Bill McGee turned on the heavy music and blanked the Reds, 4-0. Victory meant pennant for Reds. They had another chance to clinch it today, however.

Hadley to Hurl 2d Series Game

If Lefty Gomez' ailing side fails to respond to treatment the Yankee pitching program in the World Series will send Charley Ruffing, Bump Hadley of Lynn, Oral Hildebrand and Monte Pearson to the mound in that order.

Joe McCarthy of the Yanks today had disclosed this firing order as he took his champions from Boston after being rained out of a three-game series. If Gomez is able to take the hill, McCarthy added, he will start the second game of the series.

As a result of the two-day washout the Red Sox wound up their home stay and left for Washington.

2 Twin Bills

Bees Face Battling Dodgers

There is absolutely no rest for the weary Bees. Home from the western front, where they had their ears pinned back, they encounter the Brooklyn Dodgers today at N. L. Field in a twin-bill and there's another twin-bill with these same Dodgers on the docket tomorrow.

Ordinarily there is nothing to cause panic in a pair of encounters with the Dodgers, who are generally more funny than formidable. But the current flock from Flatbush is now half a game from third place and turning it on full measure in the home stretch.

It's been years since Brooklyn came up out of the second division and Manager Leo Durocher insists that his team finish no less than third.

The Cubs, who won two yesterday, both in 10 innings, to squeeze by the Dodgers by half a game, finish their season with the rampaging Cardinals and the Brooklyns have an edge in the matter of competition.

Durocher has done a noble job in vaulting the Dodgers into the first four in the N. L., but is determined to clinch third and feels that the Bees are going to be the stepping stone into the show spot.

The Bees have other notions. They can't go any higher or lower than seventh place, but they would get great satisfaction by bumping off the Brooklyns and stopping their rise.

Stengel will present his best front against the Dodgers, using Sailor Posedel, who has won 15, and Lou Bill Posedel, who has won 13, and Lou Fette today. Against these twirlers will be Tot Pressnell, who has won five of his nine decisions over the Bees and Vito Tamulis.

GRUEN WATCHES FOR LEFTY AND TED

Fans Choices In American 'Hero' Contest

By JACK CONWAY

Moses (Lefty) Grove, crack Red Sox pitcher, and the sensational Ted Williabs, prize rookie of 1939, received the most votes this season in "Yesterday's Heroes" in the Boston Evening American.

Grove was tops with the Sox pitchers, while Williams got more mentions than any regular Sox player.

In recognition of their victories, Grove and Wiliams were presented with Veri-thin Sceptor 10k gold filled 17 jewel precision new 1940 modern Gruen wrist watches.

The presentations were made at Fenway Park by Joe Cashman, baseball editor of the Boston Evening American, following the calling off of the Red Sox doubleheader.

"It was swell to have another good baseball year and also to be rewarded with a Gruen wrist watch," said Grove.

"Those are my sentiments, too," said Williams.

Birney Smith, New England director for the Gruen Watch Co., was among those present when the presentations were made.

GROVE HAD GOOD YEAR

Grove had one of his best baseball years. At the start of the season the Sox had very little hope of Lefty winning many ball games, but the famous veteran has already won 14 and is leading the league again in the earned run list. He says he will be back next season to win 14 more so that he will achieve his goal of 300 victories in the major leagues.

Williams has been the sensation of the season. He has knocked in 142 runs, more than any other player in the league, while he has picked up more than his share of home runs, 30, to be exact, with six games to go.

With a shorter right field stand at Fenway Park next season, Ted will strive to shatter Babe Ruth's home run mark of 60 circuit wallope.

The victories of Grove and Williams in "Yesterday's Heroes" was popular with their fellow players and is also certain to make a hit with the fans.

EVERYBODY'S HAPPY—Ted Williams and Lefty Grove beam with delight as Joe Cashman presents them with veri-thin Sceptor, 10k gold-filled, 17-jewel precision, new 1940 model Gruen wrist watches. Beautiful gifts were awarded youngest and oldest members of the Red Sox for topping the "Yesterday's Heroes" parade, a Boston Evening American feature.

PASTRY TOSS SLOWS TIGERS' GRID WORK

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 28 (AP)—Big Tad Wieman is a far-sighted football coach, but right now he'll tell you he is not looking beyond Oct. 14.

That's the date Princeton has Cornell's Big Red football pack as its Palmer Stadium guests. Ask Tad Wieman after that how he thinks his Tigers will rate against Columbia, Brown, Harvard, Dartmouth, Yale and Navy.

Beginning academic work ten days earlier than last year has cut down the Tigers' double practice sessions, and Wieman bemoans the fact that his charges are far behind in drilling.

PIE HURLING EPISODE

Twenty-four lettermen came back this year. And up from a good freshman team arrived a batch of promising prospects. Wieman says he doesn't figure any one of the sophomores is good enough to win a varsity berth where there is a veteran available. He is counting on them to supply reserve strength lacking in 1938.

A little piece of pastry, tossed many months ago, has added to Tad's worries. The untimely pastry pitching in the university dining hall brought a 10-day suspension for Dave Allerdice, 175-pound quarterback from Indianapolis.

The penalty was not effective until college began this fall, and Dave, a key cog in the Princeton backfield, was not eligible to join the squad until last Monday.

SOPH GUARD IN RUNNING

Best chance for a sophomore to get into the first string line is at guard, where Foster Grose is giving Jay Tschudy and Jim Worth a strong fight. At the flank posts Tad has Jim Aubrey, Thacher Longstreth, 206-pound high hurdler, Johnny Meyerholz and Howard Stanley.

The tackles include 232-pound Donald Herring, Capt. Bob Tierney, weighing 216, and 200-pound Dick Bokum.

There are plenty of men for the backfield jobs except at fullback. Besides Allerdice at quarter, Wieman has veterans Harry Dixon, Stanley Pearson and sophomore Bob Peters.

Rivalry for the halfback posts is hot, with sprinter Bob Jackson of Whitman, Mass., Dick Wells of Marblehead, Mass., and Bob Hinchman setting the pace. Then there are sophomore Ed Rose and Howard Clark, and Wieman thinks each may be very useful before the season ends.

Tony Peppi On 'Pure Card'

Two New England amateur boxing champions have sent in their entries for the first four Golden Gloves trial tournaments which will be held at the Arena next Monday night under the Irish-American A. A. auspices. They are Joe O'Donnell, middleweight king, and Tony Peppi, 112-pounder.

Peppi, still in school, has a fine record and will be favored to lift the championship when the Golden Gloves finals are held on Oct. 30.

Entered in the same class with Tony Monday are Joe Teebage, Torchester; Tony Costa, Taunton, and Joe Reposa, Fall River.

Another star who will box Monday is Bill Daley of Roxbury, in the 126-pound class. Daley's victory in last Monday's Irish-American A. A. show was his 40th in 42 contests. He has all the earmarks of a champion.

Others in Monday's 126-pound class are Edward Dutra, Taunton; George Dresser, South Boston; Arthur Samara, Woburn.

Three other elimination series will be held at the Arena on Oct. 9, 16 and 23.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

I ASK YOU TO give special attention to following the football feats of Ronnie Cahill of Holy Cross this Fall . . . He is New England's leading candidate for a position on the mythical All-America team . . . If Cahill can avoid injuries, he has a fine chance to make the all-star outfit . . . Last year McLeod of Dartmouth and Osmanski of Holy Cross won places on the Hearst All-America team, and also on many of the other national teams . . . Cahill's brilliant passing was an important factor in Osmanski's success.

Holy Cross will open New England's football season on Saturday at Worcester with Manhattan as an opponent . . . Manhattan will have to be pretty good to win from the Crusaders . . . I do not expect the invaders to reach such heights . . . Despite the loss of Osmanski and a few other stars, Holy Cross has a wealth of splendid material . . . Coach Joe Sheeketski should get off to a winning start.

Boston College should also score a victory when it takes on Lebanon Valley in its opening game on Saturday . . . This contest will mark Frank Leahy's debut as head football coach at the Heights . . . Leahy has plenty of football enthusiasm, and he should be able to pass along this spark to his players . . I think you will find football picking up quite a bit at the Heights this year.

It looks as if my alma mater, Northeastern, will have trouble on its hands when it clashes with St. Anselm at Kent Field on Saturday . . . Cleo O'Donnell always comes up with crack elevens at St. Anselm, and I have been told that this year's outfit is not an exception . . . I must string along with St. Anselm to win.

Northeastern has made remarkable forward strides in athletics during the past ten years . . . It is represented in most of the major sports, and its teams have shown to advantage . . . Coach Jimmy Dunn is confident his Huskies will add more lustre to the athletic record of Northeastern by upsetting St. Anselm . . . I'll be rooting for you, Jimmy, but I think Cleo O'Donnell has the edge for this game.

Gridiron Meets Fate of Another Favorite

NEW ENGLAND IS known as the graveyard for the champions of the turf . . . As a result, Gridiron was in a bad spot when made a favorite to win the Eddie Hurley Memorial Handicap, named in honor of the late sports columnist of the Daily Record, at Rockingham Park . . . Many Stings came on to win at the fancy price of $13.80 with Gridiron second . . . It was another big day for Dave Wilson when his daily double combination of Hurry Ann and Shaileen won and Offender took the final race on the cards . . . Its "Win With Wilson!" . . . It is the open season for Frankie Frisch's radio broadcasting job . . . Fred Hoey and Frankie Ryan have many backers, while other fans would like to see "Pie" Traynor get the berth in the event it is Pittsburgh that Frisch will manage next season.

The driving National League pennant race has caused even Bill McKechnie to have a few sleepless nights . . . It is the opinion of many keen baseball men that the Cardinals would be leading the league today if McKechnie had been calling the shots for them all season . . . Henry Chmielewski, Polish middleweight who has been boxing in New England, has not heard from members of his family since Hitler invaded Poland . . . Henry fears for the safety of his relatives who had a home in a small town outside of Warsaw . . . With Poland conquered, Chmielewski plans to apply for American citizenship at the first opportunity.

Al McCoy is in the Maine woods where he is building up vitality for a new ring campaign he plans to start late in the Fall . . . McCoy has been unsuccessful in building up as a heavyweight, and will return to the light heavyweight division with a bout with Billy Conn as his objective.

Random Shots at Target

TOM YAWKEY made a pleasant announcement when he declared that when he said Joe Cronin was "all set" for next year he meant the popular shortstop would once more manage the Sox . . . Yawkey will work out terms with Cronin at the close of the season . . . Cronin has been directing the Sox under a five-year contract calling for $25,000 a year . . . Cronin has at least two years of active playing ahead of him, and is likely to receive a three-year contract at the same salary he has been getting for the past five seasons . . . Cronin has been the lift that enabled the Sox to finish in second place.

Yawkey will try to come to terms quickly with Ted Williams . . . The latter will get at least twice the salary he has been receiving this season . . . Ted came to the Sox at a minor league salary, and has proved he has major league class . . . Babe Ruth and other baseball leaders agree Williams was the star rookie of 1939.

The rainy weather during the past few days cost the Sox and Yankees $20,000 . . . Neither club is complaining as each has had a successful season financially . . . The Sox have had better weather breaks than the Bees this year.

HENRY TOCZYLOWSKI
Blocker par excellence

R. I. Champion Risks Ring Title

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, former world's bantamweight champion, will try tonight to lift the featherweight crown from the beetle brows of Joey Archibald of Pawtucket, R. I.

Archibald, fast-stepping, dapper champion, has been buffeted about since he won the crown from Mike Belloise. Fortunately for him, his defeats came in non-title fights.

etey Scalzo knocked him out in two rounds, and he also lost to Jimmy Gilligin ard Simon Chavez.

The champion is a 7 to 5 favorite, but the Jeffra supporters are predicting an upset.

Rain Fails to Stop Amherst Drill

AMHERST, Sept. 28—Wind and cold rain, which swept Pratt Field prevented any serious contact work for the Amherst varsity in preparation for Saturday's opener with Vermont, but failed to keep the gridsters indoors.

Head Coach Jordan held a long chalk talk in the field house during the major part of the afternoon, brushing up on last-minute details and straightening out offensive and defensiv matters. Later the squad romped through a series of running through signals outdoors.

Cesarewitch Reinstated for November Date

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Cesarewitch, one of the English turf's most important handicaps which was called off originally together with other racing fixtures because of the war, was reinstated today under a plan to run two abbreviated programs at Newmarket.

The meetings will be Oct. 18-19 and Nov. 1-2. The Cesarewitch, on which is based the draw in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, will be run on one of the November dates. Originally it was scheduled for Oct. 25. The draw was slated for Oct. 20.

Toczylowski Sure Of Starting Berth

By DAVID GLUECK
GUARD ON "38" HARVARD TEAM

Henry Toczylowski, 183 pounds of blocking blond has injected a new spirit into the Boston College football squad. Head coach Frank Leahy says hustling Henry, field general and blocking back is the only one of his boys who has completely mastered his assignments in this department.

He goes further and stacks the Lynn lad alongside of the greatest blockers he's ever seen including Notre Dame's Carideo.

Speaking of Carideo, said Leahy, he sometimes called the wrong plays, but his blocking was so efficient that the Irish ball carriers made ground anyway.

Toczylowski is a Carideo who doesn't call them wrong. Add to this the qualities of leadership with which Cliff Wilson sparked last year's Harvard team and you, or rather the Eagles, have a functional footballer.

It is characteristically modest of Coach Leahy, that he should try to share the credit for B. C.'s rejuvenation, but there is also an obvious truth in what he says about Toczylowski, and a reason for the light in his eyes when he starts talking about him.

Henry is a natural general, and he keeps the Leahy lads, who heartily respect him, hopping through their drills. Furthermore he is not limited to blocking or signal calling, but is also a reliable receiver and a competent carrier, although he will probably not be used much in the latter capacity until after mid-season.

USING IRISH SYSTEM

It usually takes two years for a squad to adopt a new system of football, but the Eagles have made decided strides since last spring toward a mastery of the Notre Dame style which Leahy introduced.

The soft spoken Eagle leader admits that one difficulty he has to meet is finding ends who can take a tackle alone.

Most systems, he explains, have a wing back helping the flankmen with this difficult assignment. Such was the case at B. C. last fall and as a result such outstanding veterans as Goodreault are now having trouble with their offensive assignments this season.

But the biggest change around Alumni field is the prevailing spirit. Gridders go through their workouts with a snap and earnestness which makes the short (hour and three quarters) practice sessions long enough to cover all the details.

Outside the door of the Athletic Association offices hangs the Eagle's schedule. At the bottom of which no one has penned in a bold blue ink, after Holy Cross—Dec. 2d. "Rose Bowl Jan. 1st." Leahy doesn't quite show this optimism but, he is confident that his lads will improve from week to week.

PLENTY SOPHOMORES

Most of them, he points out, are sophomores, and they're all working hard. Instead of last year's bewildered behemoths who were helpless in their opener against Temple's aerial attack, this Saturday's game should show some heads up ball.

Such a pleasant innovation won't be attributable simply to the fact that zone defense has been substituted for man to man pass protection. Henry Toczylowski will be basting the Pennsylvania offense, and lifting the Lebanon Valley voyagers out of his team mates' way when the Dutchmen are on defense.

HENRY STRONG MAN

Speaking of lifting, Henry is no slouch with the bar-bell. He can clean and jerk 225 pounds, which is not far enough away from the record to cause anyone embarrassment.

A wrestling career which culminated in the 169-pound schoolboy championship was one qualification for his job last summer as guard in the money room at Suffolk Downs.

"Tarz" is the baby of his family. An older sister, who played a part in the film "Wizard of Oz," is trying to catch an American boat home from London, where she has been working on the stage.

Starting positions for Saturday's game will be decided by a long scrimmage with the freshman team, but Toczylowski is sure of his berth.

A session which emphasized pass offense and pass defense found the A's and B's lined up as follows:

Ryan-Dolan Team Takes Golf Title

Slipping into top spot one stroke ahead of five tied tandems, Anthony Ryan and Jimmy Dolan of Hillcrest Country Club today had captured the State President-Pro Golf championship at Charles River.

EX-BIG LEAGUER DEAD

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 28 (AP)—Abraham Lincoln Bailey, 44, a former pitcher for the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League, died at the home of his sister. He had been ill for several years.

Yankees Infield Best in Baseball

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP)—Sometimes the Cincinnati Reds' infield is torrid and sometimes it's horrid, but there never is a day that the world champion Yankees' first line of defense isn't the best in baseball.

Joe & Asbestos
By KEN KLING

Today's code goes at Rockingham Park. It is Yellow 12-5-6. Asbestos slips $20 for place on this one. Yesterday's horse lost.

It's the Maginot line of the diamond and the margin of New York's superiority in the World Series opening at Yankee Stadium next Wednesday.

There is a familiar face missing as the champions coast into their fourth consecutive series—Lou Gehrig, the Iron Horse, rusted and retired. But his unfortunate passing from the picture last spring only served to strengthen the team's defensive play.

DAHLGREN BIG HELP

Babe Dahlgren is performing plays around first base that the great Gehrig never even imagined, and, with young Joe Gordon at second, gives the Yankees the spryest, tightest right side they ever have had.

Sluggers like Gehrig in his prime don't bloom twice in one season or several seasons, but Dahlgren nonetheless is a threat at the plate. He has hit 15 home runs and batted in 88 tallies—enough to carry his weight in anybody's batting order.

Gordon is the miracle man of the Yanks' defense—the comer tabbed as potentially greater than Charley Gehringer. He can go in any direction and on one play may take a fly in short right and the next spear a hopping grounder back of second. If it's a pop-up anywhere within commuting distance for Gordon the rest of the boys let him take it. He never misses.

The left side is nearly as stout and on any basis of consideration, far in front of the foe.

ROLFE DEPENDABLE

Frank Crosetti, whose only fielding weakness is over anxiety, has only made 24 errors at shortstop all season and cancelled most of them with a doubleplay in the same inning. Red Rolfe has been even more impregnable in the hot corner.

By all measurements the outstanding third baseman of the year, he has fielded .961 and ranked among the American League's leading hitters.

He was the only player in the majors to get more than 200 hits prior to this week and bolstered his .329 batting average with 14 home runs and 46 doubles. Gordon, batting .282, has hit 26 homers, and Crosetti, having his worst hitting year at .232, has blasted 10.

The Reds' infield at its best will give the Yank or any other team plenty of grievances. Which never are supposed to lie, will even show advantages for Cincinnati here and there. But the Reds sometimes blow and the champions never do.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 28 (INS)—Weather conditions permitting, the second game of the "Little World Series" between the Rochester Red Wings of the International League and the Louisville Colonels of the American Association will be played tonight.

Si Johnson will pitch for the Wings and Big Jim Weaver, former Red Sox, for the Colonels. The Colonels, a Red Sox farm, won the opener Tuesday night. Yesterday's game was rained out.

LOSS OF CAPTAIN DE GUTIS IS BLOW TO COACH TILTON

By Michael Gillooly

There's nothing forced in the grimace that creases Coach Harry Tilton's face when he tells you of the dreary prospects of the Boston Trade school eleven which opens its 1939 season Saturday afternoon against Middlesex.

To listen to the veteran mentor, you'd draw the opinion that the Traders had less chance of winning a title than the St. Louis Browns, but the personnel of the outfit indicates an entirely different story.

On the first two teams there are only three boys who failed to break into action last season. Close to 22 candidates for positions on the eleven have worked in at least one game.

Coach Tilton feels that the loss of the captain, who did not return to school, will hurt the team's chances. During the summer months Capt. Johnny DeGutis, slated for an end berth, broke his leg, according to reports, and as yet no word has been received from the grid leader. His status remains a mystery.

"We'll be lucky if we win a pair of games this year," mourns Tilton.

LINE LIGHT THIS YEAR

"Our line is much lighter than in other years but not as sluggish. If the boys can keep that out of their systems, there won't be too much worry about the forward wall.

"Our backfield is fair but that schedule dampens the outlook.

"We open Saturday at Middlesex then next week we step into the Hub games. We meet every city school and three districts as well. In all there will be 10 tilts and that requires at least two teams.

"In scrimmage, our defensive formations showed well but our offensive has not yet started to click. I've got two triple threats, both good boys, and they're the real bright spots on this club."

Mike Maclone and Chester Gromberg, regulars last season, will be the pair of kickeds, passers and runners mentioned by Tilton who will take their places in the backfield. For support in the aerial line, Francis Grinnell will be at one of the halfback berths to make the attack more threatening.

McMANUS CALLS SIGNALS

Calling signals, Tilton has Frank McManus working with the first outfit, and Ed Healy follows directly on his heels with the second club. Healy has been working with Odd Anderson, Joseph Olson, Joe Leary and John Faldetta, who will see a lot of duty as replacements.

The tackles will be well fortified with five boys in the running. Bob Cofran and Robert Jackson, 210 pounds, have shown a slight edge over Stan Olsyna, 215 pounds; Joe Hood and Roddie Morrison.

Gerry Police has the call at right end while George Rubino and Art Williams are battling for the opening game assignment on the other wing. The loser will team with Tom Hovey on the second team.

WALSH BACK AT CENTER

Veteran Bud Walsh has regained his slot at center over Ed Sickney and he will be flanked by George Ivas and James Allera in the guards. Ed Broderick, Frank Perella and Frank Menier are the guard shock troops.

Only six of the mentioned boys are serious, the majority being members of the junior class. Coach Tildon will have an entire first team of virtual veterans returning next season.

(Commerce high school's prospects will be reviewed in tomorrow's Daily Record.)

Trade School Grid Roster

Philip Bruno, Odd Anderson, Robert Cofran, Joseph Doyle, James Allera, John Faldetta, Chester Gromberg, Francis Grinnell, Joseph Hood, Edward Healy, Thomas Hovey, Robert Hellig, Robert Jackson, George Long, Joseph Leary, Peter Murray, Francis McManus, Francis Menier, Robert Moons, Stan Olsyna, Joseph Olson, Frank Perrella, Gagliano Pacini, Gerard Police, Paul Preeper, George Rubino, Paul Sullivan, Bud Walsh, Arthur Williams, Paul Dean, Joseph Gianni, John Mussi, George Ivas, Mike Maclone, Ernest Peterson, Gerald O'Connor, Maurice Saidel, Tillo Frattli, Charles Boyse, George Byers, Edward Broderick, William Burke, Albert Raffi, John Cusack, Harold Raphel, Roddie Morrison, Edward Sickney, Joseph Furber, Bob Hurley, Jack Haddad, Fred Kelly.

Brown Varsity Works on Defense

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 28 (AP)—Wet weather meant little to the Brown Bears as they continued their preparations for their season's opener against R. I. State here on Saturday. A scrimmage session in which the B and C elevens clashed marked the drill.

The A eleven was kept out of the contact work and concentrated on defensive tactics to be employed on the week-end. Signal drill and a long dummy scrimmage also were incorporated in the workout for the first stringers.

Lawrence Boy New Eli Find

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 28 (AP)—Late classes kept Hovey Seymour, the sophomore the untried Yale football team is counting upon heavily, from reporting for practice, but Ted Harrison filled his shoes well enough to loom as a rival for the Greenwich boy's backfield job.

Harrison, a sophomore from Lawrence, Mass., confined his athletic activities last year to pitching superb ball for the frosh nine, has played no football since prep school and reported for the varsity only three days ago.

He lugged the ball like a veteran, however, piercing the second string line for numerous gains during a stiff, supervised scrimmage. The practice, held in the rain for the second successive day, was confined almost entirely to running plays, the weather being unfavorable for passing.

'Gansett Directors Vote 40c on Dollar

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept 28—Directors of Narragansett Racing Association, Inc., voted a dividend of 40 cents per share, payable October 20, to stockholders of record Oct. 10.

A similar dividend was declared following the spring meeting, making a total dividend of 80 cents on the two race meetings conducted this year.

Olympets Seeking Ninth Straight Win

Boston's Olympets, invincible of late, will seek their ninth straight softball victory Saturday night at the Garden, where they play the Stamford Nutmegs.

It will be the second appearance of the 'Meggers here this season. Dropping the first in 11 innings, 6—5, they had won 19 straight before that.

In a preliminary game Saturday, the Gardenias will close the Metropolitan League season with the Reheboth Milkmaids. The Gardenias have clinched the title with six wins in seven starts.
